Chinese Repulse UN Push

ROK Troops Stall 25-Yards From Top Of Bloody Triangle

SEOUL, Sunday, Nov. 2 (AP) — South Korean troops fought within 25 yards of the crest of Triangle Hill in determined day-long attacks Saturday but stalled at dusk under a hail of fire from Chinese Reds.

Front dispatches said doughty Eighth Army troops, now in the 20th day of indecisive action, pulled off the exposed 2,000 foot slopes to strong positions.

Allied and Communist artillery dueled sporadically through the night weary infantrymen regrouped for new assaults on the key Central Front height, just north of Kumhwa.

In the west a strong United Nations tank raiding party drove Chinese defenders from a hill, killing or wounding 500 Reds. An Allied officer said the Communist position overlooked the Sachon River which flows across the battle line, south of Panmunjom where truce talks are now in recess.

Air War Flares-Up

Far to the north the aerial war flared for the first time in six days. The Fifth Air Force claimed U. S. Sabrejets shot down two Communist MIGs and damaged four others over northwest Korea.

Other Allied planes, mainly from big U. S. fleet carriers off eastern Korea, hammered at Communist front line positions.

AP Correspondent John Randolph on the Kumhwa front, said the carrier - based planes pulled probably the biggest air strike since the Eighth Army opened its limited offensive Oct. 14.

Fighter-bombers pounded Red mortar and artillery positions on Triangle Hill.

On Jane Russell Hill, a ridge extending northwest from the crest of Triangle, other Allied troops fought tenaciously in the face of a battalion - sized 750 man Red attack.

Neither Side In Control

The Chinese penetrated part of the Allied line at dawn. Then a furious close quarter fight raged throughout most of the day. By nightfall a briefing officer said neither the Allies nor the Reds were in control.

A later front disptach indicated the Allies had repulsed a Red probe on Jane Russell and still held the height.

Another Red battalion attack was repulsed on nearby Sniper Ridge, one mile northeast.

The Fifth Air Force announced its planes during October destroyed 2,600 enemy — occupied buildings—the largest toll in 18 months.

The Air Force also claimed 26 Communist MIGs shot down during October. Allied losses behind Communist lines totalled 27, but only five were lost in air combat.

BSU State Convention Closes Today

Dr. Duke McCall, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., will speak this morning at the closing session of the annual Missouri Baptist Student Union convention being held at the First Baptist Church.

More than 615 students from colleges all over the state have registered for the convention which opened Friday night. The students are from state, denominational and private schools and are members of the local BSU groups on their campuses.

Last night a capacity audience heard Dr. McCall bring the first two of his convention messages. This morning attendance is expected to tax the seating space of the church, using the basement as an overflow for the auditorium with a loud speaker system being placed in use.

A young man, in his mid-thirties, Dr. McCall has served his denomination in many places of leadership and now heads the largest seminary of the Baptists in the entire Southern Baptist Convention. His messages on Sunday morning will bring a challenge to the young people present and a dedication service after the sermon will bring the convention to an end.

Prosecutor Ponders Hallowe'en Shooting

FOREST CITY, Mo., Nov. 1 (AP) —No decision has yet been made as to whether a charge is to be filed against Bert Hamilton, 75, in connection with the fatal shooting of a Hallowe'en prankster last night and the wounding of another.

Holt County Prosecuting Attorney Jack Eiser said he was studying the law to determine whether there should be a charge. Hamilton, who admitted firing the shotgun blast at a group of boys, is being held at the jail in Oregon, Mo.

Services for Garry Lee Cass, 15, victim of the gun blast will be Monday afternoon at the Christian Church in Forest City.

Larry Worley, 16, seriously wounded by the same blast, is in a St. Joseph Hospital.

Saddle Club To Hold Rodeo Today At Fair

This afternoon at 1 o'clock the first Fall Round-up and Horse Show, sponsored by the Sedalia State Fair Saddle Club, will begin at the Coliseum at the State Fair Grounds starting with the grand entry with all saddle clubs in surrounding territory participating.

It will be quite a sight with all brilliance of a professional rodeo fine horses and western attire in white and bright colors.

There will be an exhibition drill by the Sedalia Drill Team as an outstanding feature.

For those who like a horse show there will be the walking horse, parade and pleasure horse classes.

The youngsters will come in for their share of admiration, too, with several classes in which boys and girls under 16 are entered. There are a number who do a good job of riding in the juvenile classes.

The women riders will add real beauty to the show in their striking costumes which draw comments from both men and women. They will provide the glamour.

There will be plenty of excitement, too, when the home boys become cowboys and put on exhibitions of steer riding, Brahma steer wrestling, and goat roping, and then there will be the jumping horse exhibition which should produce a lot of laughs.

Looks like it should be a full afternoon and a mighty good show —at least that is what the Sedalia Saddle Club is trying to have and they hope everybody has as much fun as they have had getting ready for it.

Ex-Congressman Dies Of Heart Attack

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—Louis E. Miller, 52, attorney and former U. S. Congressman, died of a heart attack today at his home.

Miller was elected to Congress from the old 11th district in 1942 and served one term.

Miller, a native of Washington County, Ky., practiced law here about 30 years. He is survived by his widow and a 3-year-old daughter.

Smoke Overcomes St. Louis Firemen

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—Twenty-four firemen were overcome by smoke today while fighting a four-alarm blaze in a produce warehouse in downtown St. Louis.

Two firemen were taken to City Hospital for treatment. The others were treated at the scene.

Fire Chief Walter H. Kammann said the blaze apparently started because of a defective gas heater in the three-story brick building. He estimated damage at $9,000.

Missouri Tightens On Fires

Governor Orders An Immediate Halt To Hunting, Fishing

By The Associated Press

With the smoke still rising from charred timberlands, pastures and crop land, Missouri braced tonight for what she hoped was a winning battle against wind-driven, drought fed fires.

Her sons cast aside their thoughts of hunting and fishing, of clearing the land for next years crops. Missourians who in other years had given little thought to fire, out of control and sweeping through the underbrush, now rushed with rake and ax to stop the flames' advance.

There was brightening outlook on the weather front but it was so far still just a glimmer for this state where rain has almost become an oddity in the past two months.

And the almost solid front against racing fire appeared to be winning, at least for the present. Thousands of acres of crop and timber lands—varying estimates set it as high as 100,000 acres or more—and houses and wildlife were destroyed in less than a week. Officials refused to estimate the total damage but predicted its effect, in the forested areas, would still be felt 20 years from now.

Gov. Forrest Smith issued a disaster proclamation Friday night, banning all hunting and fishing in the state, and other outdoor activities that might increase the already explosive fire hazard.

Officials Hopeful

The state conservation commission's forestry division said cautiously it appeared aroused public sentiment and volunteer action would help Missouri pull through with a minimum of additional losses until rainfall comes in quantities.

The effect of the concerted stand against raging fire appeared Friday, even before the governor acted under his emergency disaster powers. That day foresters and the hundreds of Missourians who trooped in to bolster the defense kept well the lines against the fire.

The total loss in state-protected timber areas dropped to about 3,000 acres for the day-about the acreage that individual fires had consumed a day or so before.

Saturday the state's tired and soot-streaked firefighters held the fire losses to a comparatively puny 171 acres throughout Missouri's 10 fire protection districts. Some 17 fires broke out but they were confined to an average loss of 10 acres each. Only one fire, a small one, was still burning Saturday night.

Jefferson City joined the growing list of cities where leaf and trash burning have been banned until wet weather returns. Mayor Arthur W. Ellis issued an order against unnecessary fires Saturday. Despite a rash of grass and trash fires in recent days, little damage has been caused in the capital city.

Weather Won't Change Much

The weather forecast for the next few days became a little more hopeful but still did not offer any final cure for the threat of fire. The weather man said the wind would swing to the north, it would be cooler and partly cloudy with possible showers in southern parts of the state Sunday night.

Bill Towell, assistant state forester, said that would help but the state still would need a heavy soaking general rain before Missourians would be able to relax and hunting and fishing seasons could be opened again.

States which gained are California, 7; Florida, 2; and Maryland, Michigan, Texas, Virginia and Washington, one each. States which lost are Pennsylvania, 3, Missouri, New York and Oklahoma, 2 each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, one each. States have the same electoral vote as they have congressmen. Electors vote for the President. (AP Wirephoto map).

Hallowe'en Damage Held To Minimum

Hallowe'en distruction in Sedalia was at a minimum Friday night, according to the Police Department. Police, however, were kept extremely busy answering calls where "gangs" were touring the city and where "trick or treat" groups were visiting homes.

The actual number of calls was not tabulated as some calls were relayed to the American Legion Auxiliary Police patrol cars when the caller informed the police the call was not of a serious nature.

"One" Is Overturned

As far as the property damage was concerned the usual fence damage was reported, many being pulled over, gates taken away, and clothes lines cut. One outside toilet building was overturned at 129 East Saline, a brick incinerator, 923 West Fourth, was badly damaged.

At 804 West 16th, residence of E. W. Damrill, a report was made a car drove into the driveway and in backing out the bumper caught the front porch and damaged it. The name of the driver or the license number of the car were not obtained.

Garbage Cans Missing

Of course the usual garbage cans and containers are missing from back yards and scattered to new locations. The tops of garbage cans likewise are the most among the listings of missing articles.

Several small car trailers were reported missing, but Saturday afternoon all had been returned to their owners.

A number of motorists reported boys throwing rocks at cars, but, upon investigating, the boys or girls had disappeared. One gang which threw rocks at Broadway school was dispersed.

Fires Are Extinguished

One of the most dangerous tricks was the putting out of flares around open holes in streets. This kept several officers busy with matches relighting them. Fortunately, no accidents were reported of cars hitting these open places.

Tricksters who insisted in putting the David Hieronymus station wagon upon the sidewalks were caught. No sooner had the station wagon been moved back into the street, than the same bunch would "drift" by and put it back. One Auxiliary Police officer finally went to his room, changed into street clothes, and stood nearby watching the car. The gang came back, lifted it back upon the sidewalk, and did an excellent job, only to have the officer step up, tap them on the shoulder and tell them "move 'er back boys". That stopped the shifting of the small station wagon.

No Fires Are Started

Hallowe'en pranksters did respect the order of City officials to refrain from starting fires in leaves and trash. Only one grass fire, that was at 319 East Pettis, this being at 7:07 p. m. The other fire was to the residence of S. W. Washburn, 713 Wilkerson, where a gas furnace was giving trouble. This alarm was at 7:15 p. m. A still alarm was issued for Second and Osage at 9:04 p. m. Firemen washed gasoline down the street into a drain after it had leaked from the gasoline tank of a car.

Missouri Receives 1953 Highway Funds

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) The Commerce Department today announced allocation of 575 million dollars in federal funds to the state for highway work in the year that starts next July 1.

These funds, to be matched locally, were authorized by Congress last session. Separate congressional action is necessary to provide the money.

The allocations include:

Kansas— $11,983,630; Missouri— $15,981,742; Oklahoma— $11,002,623.

Chinese Union Protests Rosenberg's Sentences

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP) — Peiping radio said today the All-China Federation of Labor cabled President Truman a protest against the death sentences awaiting Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, Americans convicted of passing atomic secrets to Soviet Russia.

Pranksters Feather Newly-Paved Streets

CAIRO, Mo., Nov. 1—(AP)—Hallowe'en celebrators startled the residents of this little town with an unusual prank.

Four streets were resurfaced yesterday with asphalt. This morning all of the sticky, new surface was covered with white feathers—to a depth of two inches in some places.

Where did that many feathers come from? There's no public answer yet. Most of the feathers still were on the streets late today.

New Mail Drop For 'Sedalia Only' Mailings

Patrons of the Sedalia Post Office can help expedite all their mail that is addressed for delivery in Sedalia by separating local delivery mail from out-of-town delivery.

A new drop for "Sedalia Only Mail" has been provided in the lobby of the office.

This local mail drop is located just to the right of the old drops which are now used for deposit of out-of-town mail only. They are so labeled.

"If all patrons, particularly Sedalia business firms or other organizations which send mail in large volume to Sedalia residents, will co-operate in this separation of mail, the local office expects to save time for its patrons in the delivery of such matter," Postmaster Maurice Hogan advises.

Patrons' assistance in separation will be a great time saver, particularly around the first of the month when business firms mail monthly statements, and especially during the Christmas mailing season when the volume of mail taxes the working force of the postal service.

Postmaster Hogan warns patrons of the Sedalia area that there are just 13 more days left to mail packages to Armed Forces overseas. The last date set aside by the Post Office department for these gift mailings is Nov. 15.

Patrons should make plans to shop early and mail all of their Christmas parcels early. Out-of-state parcels should be mailed by Dec. 5, those for distant states somewhat earlier. For local delivery, mail by Dec. 10.

Houstonia Boy Will Attend 4-H Congress

Clinton Reed, Houstonia, will be one of 17 delegates from the 4-H clubs of Missouri to attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 30 to Dec. 1.

The 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Reed, president this year of the Prairie Ridge Club, is the state winner in the meat animal contest—the same contest won by his brother, Forrest Eugene, in 1951.

Working in his eighth year of club work, Clinton scored in the state contest through his reports on the meat animal projects he is taking and through his participation in the club, school, church and community activities.

This year as his club work the Houstonia boy is carring sow and litter, ewe and lamb and 100 bushel corn projects. He has become known as a breeder of Poland China hogs and his animals have been in demand in Missouri as well as in neighboring states.

In his eight years as a 4-H'er, Clinton has carried a total of 32 projects of 14 different types. These have netted him $2,635. Most of the income has been from his hogs and sheep. As an example of his achievements as a hog breeder, it may be pointed out he always scores heavily at the Missouri State Fair with his entries, and takes many ribbons at other fairs in the state.

He has shown in the open classes against the adult breeders and at the State Fair has had the senior champion boar, first place get-of-sire, first place produce-of-dam and third place sow.

A junior leader in his club, he has been a delegate to State 4-H Club Week in Columbia, to the American Royal 4-H Club Conference and to Boys State. For several years he has been a member of the Pettis County 4-H livestock judging team, which this year placed fourth in the district in a contest that had only 32 points difference in the first four teams.

Dr. Peters To Speak To Rotary

Dr. I. L. Peters of the Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, will be the speaker Monday noon at Rotary Club meeting, which will be held at the Bothwell Hotel.

Hot Campaign Nears Climax; Experts Doubtful Of Outcome

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

The 1952 presidential campaign, a strange blend of high drama and fierce muck-raking, approched its hour of great decision today with politicians and pollsters tormented by doubts about the outcome.

Despite a brave front put up by strategists in both camps, most of them were still "running scared" on the big question:

Will the sovereign American voter choose Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower or Gov. Adlai Stevenson next Tuesday to cope with world Communism and a crowding host of domestic problems in the next four years?

Forecasts of generally fair weather strengthened predictions of a mammoth outpouring of 55 million or more voters—far more than the previous record of 49,820,000 set in the Roosevelt-Willkie contest of 1940.

The voters will choose, not only a president and vice president, but 34 senators, 432 House members, 29 state governors and a multitude of lesser officials. Maine elected its governor, a senator and three representatives, all Republicans, in September.

Bitterness Causes Boredom

The electorate had been treated to a campaign which ranks in bitterness with any of the past—and toward the end there were signs that some of the citizenry had become bored with it all. The candidates had in many cases run out of adjectives and were repeating themseives.

The encounter between Eisenhower's "great crusade" and Stevenson's "talk sense" drive at first looked like it might be a gentleman's argument. But it speedily became a general brawl. President Truman, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin and many others flailed the opposition.

Such words as "Bigotry," "Smear," "manure," "fraud," "slander," "flim-flam" and "lies" became standard campaign ammunition.

In the closing weeks, both sides seemed to reach the conclusion that the Korean War might be the deciding issue. Eisenhower charged that bungling by the Truman administration had got this country into it. More South Koreans should be trained to man the front line, cutting American losses, he said.

Then Eisenhower made a major move. If elected, he said, "I shall go to Korea" to try to bring the war to "an early and honorable end."

Adlai Sees No Easy Way

Stevenson hotly declared there was "no slick and easy" way out of the stalemate; he said he would not make "false promises" even if it cost him the election. Truman pictured Eisenhower as a pitchman selling a "new patent medicine" to end the war.

In the last days of the campaign, the war cast into semi-shade such other burning issues as Communism, corruption in government, inflation, civil rights, "prosperity", "isolationism" and many others.

The pollsters lined their forecast with featherbed clauses on which they could fall back if the limb got sawed off.

One frequently-heard analysis ran like this: "Eisenhower is ahead, but Stevenson is gaining; the question is whether he can catch up by Nov. 4."

Farm Bureau Set For Record Crowd

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 1 (AP) —The Missouri Farm Bureau Federation is all set here for a record annual convention Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

The farm organization's state office predicted the convention would draw between 1,000 and 1,200 persons here. Herbert W. Voorhees, president of the New Jersey Farm Bureau, is scheduled as the main speaker Thursday night.

Water Situation Now Critical At Green Ridge

GREEN RIDGE—The water situation in Green Ridge is becoming critical. Many residents are out of water and have been for some time. A number of residents have had water hauled from Windsor to fill their cisterns. Many old wells and cisterns that have not been used for years have been opened and the water has been purified either by boiling or chemical process and used for laundry and other purposes. Fire is a very dangerous thing in a city like Green Ridge that has no city water system.

Trick 'Er Treat Mostly Treats

Its A Gay Time For Kiddies Unless Tummy Aches Follow

It wasn't quite a Hallowe'en cat —it wasn't all black—it had some white on it—that is why it was so afraid of the youngsters dressed up in Hallowe'en costumes and false faces—especially the rubber kind that moved and "chewed." Poor kitty—she just couldn't stay on the front porch in comfort—the kids kept coming with those awful looking faces—she tried to get in the house and hide—but she was found and put out again—and when things finally quieted down kitty took a long "purr" of relief and went to sleep.

But the youngsters were cute and they were welcomed into homes all over town and given treats. Sometimes they were in big groups and in some homes the treats ran out.

They know where the best treats were, too. A little boy called to another in one neighborhood: "Go in there—they're giving out chocolate bars."

Then a few minutes later one youngster yelled to another: "What have they got in that house?"

"Popcorn balls", came the answer.

"Come on", said the kid to his companion, "Let's go to the next house I don't like popcorn balls."

In another neighborhood three small boys came to the door of one home and the woman, recognizing them immediately, said: "Why, I don't believe I know who you are —are you little boys in the neighborhood?"

"Yes", said one little boy, I'm Terry and I live next door, and this is my brother and this is Larry and he lives down the street."

Tiny folks, all dressed up, visited the homes of friends and relatives and had a grand time because people didn't know them. One little boy was taken to a home where his daddy delivers groceries. He went in by himself and although he had never been there before and the people didn't know him he talked and talked, he told them he was "Kenny" — and standing there looking in on the scene was his daddy who had slipped in the house unnoticed.

One young pirate put on a stove blacking mustache and was afraid he was going to rub it off all the time.

The little girls were particularly pretty. A pair of them had on formals and fur coats. Two other littie girls in a bunch of five were getting mighty tired—they were wearing old high heeled slippers several sizes too big. But a small girl with them spoke up, with: "I'm not tired—I got on my old shoes."

Three cute boys were out together and one had on a face with a grin and a big musical nose. Every now and then he would squeeze the nose and everybody laughed—but kitty didn't see anything funny about it—he looked at her—squeezed the nose and away she went.

From the looks of the bags, many of them emptied more than once. Hallowe'en should last for quite a long time—and there might have been a few little tummy aches on the day after the trick or treat night.

Markoffs Cut Huge Increase Of Voters Here

Sedalia had a startling influx of voters in the recent registration —a total of 843 to be exact—BUT the registration books show only an increase of only 172 voters over those eligible for the general election of 1948.

The official books in 1948 general election had 19,497 voters, while the total registration for 1952 is 19,669—the 172 increase.

The slight increase, although a heavy registration has been experienced, is due to the "mark offs". These are persons who have either died or have been sent to prison. Only those names on lists furnished the registrars by the bureau of vital statistics or by the Circuit Clerk can be taken off the books.

Hence there are still thousands of names on the Sedalia registration books of persons who have moved away from Sedalia, of persons who have died away from Sedalia and whom no notification has been legally furnished the registrars. Also a number remain on the books who have been sent to prison—but from another county or state.

The registration comparison:

	1948	1952	diff.
1st Ward	3,997	4,379	382
2nd Ward	2,332	2,327	5
3rd Ward	6,489	5,544	945
4th Ward	6,679	7,419	740
Total increase			172

The battle for absentee ballots is going on between both the major parties. County Clerk James Green said Saturday that 814 absentee ballot applications are on file. Of this number 173 are war ballots (men and women in the service) and 641 are civilian ballots.

Absentee Total A Record

This is the largest absentee ballot vote in the history for Pettis County, Green said. "From the applications being requested, I would say both political parties are battling down to the last minute for votes," he added.

Green also announced that application for absentee ballots can be made up to 6 p. m. the day before the election (Monday). He said his office would be open until that time.

Absentee ballots all must be back in the County Clerk's Office by 6 p. m. the day following the election (Wednesday). Members of his office always go to the Post Office that day to be sure all absentee ballots in the Post Office by that time are collected and returned to his office within the legal time.

In 1944 there were 622 absentee ballots cast, 350 Democratic and 272 Republican. This was the largest absentee balloting to that time. But in 1948 there were only 186 absentee ballots cast, 16 of which were war ballots.

GOP Won County In 1944

In the 1944 general election the combination of Dewey and Bricker carried Pettis County by 520 votes —7,696 to the Roosevelt-Truman combination, which received 7,176. In that election Roosevelt and Truman carried the city by 455 votes, while the county vote gave Dewey-Bricker a majority of 1,053. The total Pettis County vote was 14,872.

But in 1948 the Truman-Barkley combination carried the county by 1,732 votes. The vote was 8,389 for Truman and Barkley, and 6,657 for Dewey and Warren. In that election Dewey and Warren carried the county precincts by 106 votes, while Truman and Barkley carried the City of Sedalia by 1,626. The total Pettis County vote was 15,046.

With the absentee voting being as large as it is, Pettis County is expected to record a record vote Tuesday. A close estimate is difficult with both party leaders indicating only "a record vote."

Hughesville Woman Hurt In Car Accident

Mrs. Marie Gilbert, Hughesville, was injured in a car accident at 2:31 p. m. Saturday at Missouri and Cooper, when the car in which she was riding was involved in a collision. Mrs. Gilbert suffered a laceration of the chin, fracture of the nose, bruised scalp and fracture of one or more ribs.

Frank Hieronymus, of Houstonia, the driver of the car in which Mrs. Gilbert was riding, was going north on Missouri and collided with a car driven by Wilbur E. Zumwalt, Columbia, going east or Cooper.

Damage resulted to the right side of Zumwalt's car and to the front of Hieronymus' car.

Both drivers were booked for careless driving and posted a $25 bond.

Missouri Awaits Tuesday Election With New Interest

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 1 (AP)—Missouri, one of the bellwether states in presidential years, heads into next Tuesday's election with the voters aroused as never before.

A record vote is predicted. It may reach close to 2,000,000, which would be half a million more than four years ago.

How will those new voters cast their ballots? Will Missouri's 13 electoral votes go for Stevenson or Eisenhower?

The experts admit they don't know. The gamblers' odds are practically even. The answers you get depend on what partisan you talked to last.

Four years ago, President Truman carried his native state with a huge 262,000 vote majority. Nothing like that is in sight this time, although a poll of newspaper men in mid-October showed the state still Democratic.

Here's what the party chairmen say:

W. F. Daniels, Democratic state chairman—"I am certainly no political prognosticator, but every report received from all over the state indicates a Democratic plurality of at least one hundred thousand for the national and state tickets."

Perry Compton, Republican state chairman—"Eisenhower will carry the state outside of the St. Louis by 100,000 votes—comparable to "A landslide for Eisenhower" outstate. He predicts an even break in the City of St. Louis, which would be enough to "sweep the entire state ticket into office."

Both Sides Are Doubtful

It sounds like they're talking about two different elections. Actually, partisans on both sides have their fingers crossed about next Tuesday's balloting.

What has them worried is the tremendous upsurge of voter interest — record registrations in populous areas, record numbers of requests for absentee ballots. Officials estimate the absentee vote alone may reach 35,000 to 40,000. And many elections have been decided by less than that.

For years, every since 1904, Missouri has been on the winning side in presidential elections. It is counted normally as a Democratic state, but when the nation went Republican, so did Missouri.

In the state campaign, the senatorial contest has been the bitterest in years.

At stake is the seat once held by President Truman and now occupied by Republican Sen. James P. Kem of Kansas City. He is an attorney who has hammered away for months against the administration's foreign and domestic policies—and at his Democratic opponent.

That is W. Stuart Symington, St. Louis businessman and former administration trouble shooter. He ran without Mr. Truman's blessing in the primary but has since been endorsed by the President.

Battle Has Been Bitter

They have been embroiled in a brawling, name - calling battle. Each has charged the other with character assassination and they don't smile when they meet on the same platform.

Their fight has had to share the headlines with the governorship race—and that's the one that carries the life blood of patronage for the party organizations.

For the Democrats, former Gov. Phil M. Donnelly of Lebanon is trying for a comeback. He served his first term from 1945-49 and has campaigned almost entirely on the record he made then while attacking what he calls the negative legislative record of his opponent.

The Republican nominee challenging Donnelly is Rep. Howard Elliott of Ladue, former speaker of the state house of representatives. He's a rock-em-sack-em political orator who has endorsed a state fair employment practices commission and questioned Donnelly's claims.

Buck Lemmon Fatally Hurt During Races

SWEET SPRINGS—J. B. "Buck" Lemmons, a former resident of Sweet Springs, was fatally injured during the races at Memorial Field Sunday afternoon and died Tuesday morning. The accident occurred during the third heat race in which his nephew, Jack Lemmons, was driving. Jack's car overturned on the north curve and apparently "Buck" became excited and ran onto the track and into the side of a car being driven by Carl Highley. The impact threw him several feet and he was rendered unconsicous. Dr. Ralph Jones administered first aid and sent him to Fitzgibbon Hospital in Marshall by Parker ambulance.

Jack Lemmons was uninjured when his car overturned.

"Buck" was born south of Sweet Springs, Sept. 22, 1898 and was the son of Trissy Atwood Lemmons and the late Thomas Lemmons. He lived in this community until a few years ago when he moved to Kansas City. On Nov. 10, 1921, he was married to Miss Effie Mae Weddle. Six children were born to this union.

He is survived by: his wife, six children, John and Vance Lemmons, Evansville, Ind., Dean Lemmons, Junction City, Kan., Mrs. Joan Long, and Brice Lemmons, Kansas City, and Jan Lemmons, Dunn, N. C.; his mother, Mrs. Trissy Lemmons; five brothers, Boss Lemmons, Grain Valley, George and Arthur Lemmons, Richmond, Calif.; one sister, Mrs. Leon Wing, St. Louis; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. at the Parker Funeral Home. The Rev. C. A. McClure, Baptist pastor, officiated.

Burial was in Fairview Cemetery, Sweet Springs.

Notes from the Library—

Cookbooks Available to Help Plan Meals for Fall Days

After the light, cooling meals customarily served in summer, the first tang of fall in the air brings back lagging appetites and sends the housewife scurrying to her cookbook to find new, tempting hot dishes. This week the Public Library features its well - rounded selection of books on cookery, both the regular and specialty kinds.

For complete encyclopedias of cooking, the Library recommends the "Fannie Farmer Cook Book," and "The Joy of Cooking," by Irma S. Rombauer. The first is an old standby of many generations of cooks and is constantly revised to bring it completely up to date, while retaining old favorites hard to find in other cookbooks. "The Joy of Cooking," which first made its appearance some 20 years ago, has also gone through many revisions and in its present form contains nearly 3,500 recipes. Most cookbooks are as soulless as an empty cupboard, but "The Joy of Cooking," is fun to read as well as a treat to follow.

"The Frozen Food Cook Book," by Simpson and Taylor, contains hundreds of recipes and suggestions for using frozen foods to the best advantage. Pointing out the convenience, quality and economy of quick - frozen foods, the authors also emphasize the health factor inherent to this type of food, providing as it does a year - round access to balanced nutrition.

Owners of backyard barbecue ovens will appreciate "Outdoor Cooking," by the Browns, who also include chapters on special picnic dishes, outfits and menus for camping trips, hikes and hunting trips.

"The 60-Minute Chef," written by two business women who love good food but have little time to prepare meals, is designed to be of real help to all cooks, whether career women or housewives who want to shorten the time they must spend in the kitchen.

For all round good reading, with the recipes painlessly flowing in and around the prose, the Library thinks you will like "Cross Creek Cookery," by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, author of "The Yearling;" "Mrs. Appleyard's Kitchen," by Kent, and a classic of nostalgia, "The Country Kitchen," by Della T. Lutes.

To prove that sufferers from ulcers or other forms of digestive trouble need not dine exclusively on goat's milk, Sheila Hibben has prepared a book of recipes called "Good Food for Bad Stomachs." Miss Hibben has followed the scientific rules of Dr. Sara M. Jordan, a foremost gastroenterologist, and the resulting recipes are not only a boon to bad stomachs but would be a pleasure to healthy ones.

Miss Hibben is also the author of "American Regional Cookery," featuring favorite recipes from all sections of the United States. Missouri is represented by Baked Boone County Ham, St. Louis Squabs with Sauerkraut, and many others.

TO THE VOTERS OF PETTIS COUNTY

We urge the voters of our county to vote their Judicial Ballot at the General Election on November 4, 1952. The names of four judges of the Supreme Court are to be submitted for retention in office. You should cast your ballot on each of the four judges.

The names of Hon. S. P. Dalton, Hon. Frank Hollingsworth, Hon. C. A. Leedy., Jr., and Hon. Ernest M. Tipton of the Supreme Court will be found on the Judicial Ballot for retention in office as judges of the Supreme Court under the provisions of the non-partisan court plan of Missouri.

All four of these men are able jurists and most worthy of being retained in their present positions. By secret ballot, the lawyers of Missouri have by a very great majority endorsed each and all of these men, which endosement certainly shows their standing as judges with the Missouri lawyers.

We, the undersigned, unhesitatingly endorse these men and urge all voters, regardless of party, to be sure to procure the non-partisan "Judicial Ballot" when you go to the polls November 4th, and vote YES, scratch NO to retain all four of these worthy judges in office.

Let's elect top men of statesmanlie calibre:

Ike for President
Symington for Senator
Donnelly for Governor

Over - zealous campaigners of both parties will probably deluge the country with green, pink or yellow printed handbills, or tabloids, or postcards over the weekend. These last minute smear tactics often are cleverly prepared to influence gullible citizens to change their minds. Pay no attention to such scurrilous literature. The average citizen has heard enough, seen enough and read enough to form an opinion on election candidates by now. That is, after you finish reading this column today.

One of my oldest newspaper friends is Roy Morris, Versailles, Missouri. About 40 years ago he published a weekly newspaper in Houstonia. During World War I, when my father was in the army overseas, Morris was on the news staff of the Sedalia Democrat. He and Buck Agee gave me my first baptism of news reporting.

I'll never forget the time Roy helped me on a feature story and then went to the boss, A. D. Stanley and got my salary raised from $6.00 to $7.00 per week. That was big money.

Later I went east and Roy to Kansas City. Not long ago he made his home in Versailles. He's still a reader of the Sedalia newspaper and still inclined to prod me as he used to back in 1918. Here's what he writes.:

"Dear George: The picture of the next "first family" of the United States published in the Democrat Sunday makes you "suspect." It could be a sly attempt to go Republican. It is very confoosin' and not amoosin'.

"If my beloved old friend and your father, Col. Scruton, can gaze down upon that "fox paw" from that happy land where he dwells, I feel sure his face today wears an expression of great sadness.

"If you, perchance, should ever again become a father, I hope your child or children will be born congenital Democrats, fully clothed in unremovable sweaters on which will be writ large, "I Am A Democrat."

The picture Roy referred to was an advance for post election use showing the Eisenhower family designated as the nation's "first family." It got into the paper by mistake of a composing room Democrat. That should help take the heat off, Roy.

Roy's last paragraph ("if I should ever become a father again") offers a real challenge to me, the father of six daughters, five of whom are married — the fifth only last week. But to start off at this late date to have another family! I say, again, this is a real challenge. It would require a bit of domestic discussion and meditation. You know, Roy, there are six grandchildren, now. So you see the anomaly of having children younger than grandchildren.

I'm all for equipping them with "Democrat" sweaters, Roy, because I have not abandoned the teaching of my father, Col. Scruton. What has happened politically is that old - time Democrats have abandoned themselves to a new philosophy. The New Deal and the Fair Deal, and really are not Democrats at all.

I don't for a moment believe that a rip - snortin' Democrat like my father was, would tolerate by silence or support the use of the Democratic label for what this country has been afflicted with the past decade.

Our sense of morality and ethics has become diseased because of the looseness of our purely political one - sided government. We talk about the necessity of a two-party system in order to retain our form of democracy. We are losing it because of public apathy and political greed, which fosters corruption. We need more than a shot-in-the-arm by a change of Fair Deal faces. We need a blood transfusion that Ike Eisenhower can give us.

A salesman was in the office this week. He is a Democrat. He spoke about corruption in government and the effect it has on small business men overtaxed. Millions in taxes saved for gamblers because they have influence in Washington. A repair man did a $15.00 job for this salesman. so when it came time to pay for the job the salesman said he'll write a check for $15.00 The repair man said, well, if you'll pay me cash I'll make the job $13.00 So here you have an elementary illustration of how the repair man intends to beat the government out of the tax involved on $13.00 which he will stick in his pocket and keep no book record. It becomes smart to cheat.

This salesman teaches a Sunday school class of Junior age high school students. And he says it's a tough job because of the amazing mental attitude of those youngsters toward morality and ethics today as compared with 25 years ago. He says:

"Sometimes I feel like a dope trying to teach these youngsters the moral philosophy of old - time religion. I can see in their eyes they're inwardly snickering at me as an old fogey."

So, if adults shrug their shoulders and take for granted open thievery, bribery, corruption and tolerance of communism in our government and do not take the trouble to register a protest at the ballot box, what moral behavior can American parents expect from their children?

Of course, it might be explained, this New Deal - Fair Deal program has existed long enough to rear a generation of parents who just don't give a damn.

Which brings us pretty close to the hopeless stage as expressed recently by John Roosevelt, son of Franklin D. Roosevelt. John remarked: "I think my father would be as disgusted as I over 'he degeneration of the Democratic party."

Brothers All Serve In Korea, One Wounded And Another Receives Army Decoration

Ford received the Silver Star and Bronze Star in World War II. He is stationed at Fort Lee, Va., where he is an instructor. His wife, the former Lula M. Kehl, and son, Charles, are in Fort Lee with him.

He joined at the local recruiting station both times. He is now in a hospital in Japan.

Wellington Mansion Now Museum

NEW YORK (AP) — The mansion which grateful England gave to the Duke of Wellington for beating Napoleon at Waterloo has been turned back to the government because the present duke can't bear the tax load.

The British Information Service reports here that the great house, whose address is simple "No. 1, London", will become a museum. It has been restored to resemble its original appearance.

It is estimated that if all the recoverable coal reserves of Kentucky were converted into gasoline, there would be enough motor fuel to last the entire United States for 100 years.

Pirate-Hunt Planned

MANILA (AP) — The British and the Philippines have agreed to work together in an attempt to stamp out smuggling and piracy in the seas around British North Borneo.

The modern - day pirates ply the seas between the Philippines and Borneo in native wooden craft equipped with modern, high-powered engines.

Excavation Yields Ancient Villa

VIENNA (AP) — Busy earthworms recently led to the discovery of the remnants of an old Roman home near Petronell, an Austrian village on the highway to Budapest, 15 miles east of Vienna.

A party of Austrian scientists digging for a buried Roman city noticed tiny particles of colored earth pushed to the surface by earthworms. Assuming that the color came from murals of a buried building, the group dug up the remains of a 30-yard-wide 2-story Roman villa.

The villa is believed to be part of a "city" attached to the ancient Roman fort of Carnuntum, which was excavated by Austrian scientists before the first world war.

The first sugar mill on the North American continent is believed to have been established by Cortez in 1535.

Watchmakers Time Convention

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Wisconsin Watchmakers Association started and wound up state convention all in one day on a recent Sunday. They elected officers, heard technical talks, watched "watch" movies and held a dance. The whole program went off like clockwork.

A feature attraction was a watch exhibited by a Swiss group that was 20 times as large as an ordinary watch.

Firemen Believe Bad Wiring Caused Blaze At Hillsboro In Which 18 Died

HILLSBORO, Mo., Nov. 1 (AP)—A coroner's jury today heard volunteer firemen testify that they believed defective wiring was the cause of a fire which swept through a three-story nursing home here last night sunffing out the lives of 18 aged persons.

Jefferson County Coroner John Long said the firemen testified the fire was believed to have started from wiring in a linen closet on the first floor of the home.

He said the jury reported 16 of the victims died of suffocation. Two others were dead on arrival at St. Louis County Hospital, about 35 miles north of the scene.

In Jefferson City, the Missouri Association of Licensed Nursing Homes adopted a resolution urging legislation for a stricter inspection system of nursing homes.

Better Laws Needed

John N. Lashly, St. Louis attorney for the group, said the 18 deaths at the Cedar Grove Nursing Home "emphasized the need" for more regid state laws on operation of homes for the aged and infirm. He said the Cedar Grove home was not a member of this group.

After a preliminary check with the Jefferson County Health Department, L. E. Ordelheide, state public health engineer, said "I don't believe a full-scale state investigation is indicated."

He said the home, while not fireproof, was according to the licensing records adequately staffed and equipped with good fire protection equipment, including fire escaped and extinguishers.

Most Died On Third Floor

Most of the dead were trapped on the third flood of the stone and frame structure, but some were found on the floor below.

At least 36 other residents of the home were reported injured in the blaze which spread quickly up stairways and along corridors as attendants worked to get the 85 residents to safety.

Hillsboro firemen were joined by men and equipment from four nearby towns. They brought the blaze under control in about two hours.

Long said James Lewis, operator of the home, stood on his constitutional rights and refused to testify at the inquest.

Cancer Fatal To Mrs. Crosby

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP) — Death from cancer came today to Mrs. Bing Crosby, the star who married an obscure singer 20 years ago and left the family's fame to him thereafter.

Dixie Lee Crosby lost her fight despite every available medical effort. The former musical comedy and film actress died at 10 a.m., in her home here. She would have been 41 Tuesday.

Mrs. Crosby had been in a coma since last Tuesday, and did not regain consciousness. At her bedside were Bing, her four sons and her father, E. E. Wyatt.

Last Monday she became a Catholic. Her family said she had been planning for some time to join the church.

Bing's brother, Larry Crosby, said Mrs. Crosby suffered from "a generalized cancer condition which balked all attempts at alleviation," and added:

"Immediate members of the family refused to give up hope until the very end, and until every possibility had been explored. The family wishes to thank the many kind folks for their prayers and good wishes."

Truman Finishes Campaign Tour At St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Truman rolled into St. Louis three minutes ahead of schedule today, arriving for his final speech of the 1952 campaign here tonight.

The Truman train, which had chugged across Indiana and Illinois in whistle-stop spurts today, pulled into Union Station at 4:27 p.m. (CST). The President is to speak at Kiel Auditorium at 9 p.m.

Ten minutes after his arrival, Truman stepped into a car and entered a motorcade to his hotel stopover, Phil Donnelly, campaigning for governor, and U. S. Senate hopeful Stuart Symington, rode with the President.

Police Capt. James Thompson estimated the crowd which greeted Truman at the station at 10,000.

Lewis Wins Boost In Miners' Wages

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — John L. Lewis today won from the industry the same $1.90 daily wage boost for 65,000 hard coal miners which the Wage Stabilization Board two weeks ago ordered reduced to $1.50 in the case of 375,000 soft coal miners.

The new anthracite contract is due to take effect Nov. 16. The $1.90, however, cannot be paid until the WSB rules whether the increase in inflationary.

Kettering Expects Few Changes

HOUSTON (AP) — Revolutionary changes in automobiles in the next 25 years are not likely in the opinion of Dr. Charles F. Kettering, vice president of the General Motors research division.

The 77-year-old executive said here recently that dieselization of passenger cars is not feasible. The automotive industry's present ambitions are concerned with making cars more efficient, more durable, better styled and better equipped from the standpoint of their power plants.

He said that new high-compression engines will give motorists from 25 to 40 per cent more gasoline mileage. He predicted that such engines will not become generally available for five or six years although a few may show up in the next year or so.

Dimes Offer Spot For Coin Collector To Realize Profit

By Bill Hert

In seeking profits on coins taken from circulation, dimes offer a rich hunting ground. Many people, even tho not coin collectors, have made a hobby of collecting the so-called Liberty Head dimes, issued from 1892 to 1916, and since these can still be found in circulation, this article will cover this series.

Condition is a prime factor in fixing premiums or values of dimes, just as in any other series of coins. These dimes must be in fine condition to command the top premiums: show little wear, with all lettering sharp and clear. It is impossible to improve a coin's condition by any process, and some coins have been so damaged in cleaning attempts that their value was lost.

These dimes were made in four mints, with the mint mark or letters, O, S and D, for New Orleans, San Francisco, Denver, with none for coins struck in Philadelphia. These mint letters are found at the bottom of the reverse, (tails) side, under the wreath. Most of the mint marked dimes from 1892 thru 1904 have premiums amounting to two or three times their face value, up to several dollars each for the scarce ones. The 1895-O is worth the largest premium one of these. In fine condition, it will bring around $5. Any of these, 1892-S, 1894-O, 1895-S, 1896-S, 1896-O, 1897-S, 1897-O, 1901-S, are worth from one to two dollars each, if in fine condition.

King of the dimes, and one of the greatest rarities among coin collectors, is the 1894-S of which only 24 were minted. In 1894, the San Francisco mint, as a bookkeeping entry, needed $2.40 to balance, and as the die for this dime had been prepared, with further anticipation of use, 24 of these dimes were struck and got in circulation. The mint received no further orders to strike dimes that year and, therefore, they became great rarities. These dimes, along with the 1913 Liberty Head nickel, mentioned in a previous article, do appear from time to time in the coin collectors market, and bring from $2500 to $3500 each, but it is a waste of time trying to find one, in circulation.

Questions and Answers

Q. Do silver dollars dated 1878, 1887 and 1889 have a premium?

A. No. As with any series of coins, there are several scarce dates that will bring a premium, however, as a rule, not many coined after 1840 do. Many people are under the mistaken impression that all silver dollars are worth premiums. Although silver dollars have not been minted since 1935, millions remain in circulation and it is seldom that a bank cannot supply quantities for individuals or businesses.

Q. How can you secure new coins from all of the U. S. mints each year?

A. The Treasury Department will furnish a complete set of new or uncirculated coins, from all three mints, for the current year, at the face value of the coins, plus postage and registration fee. This service is only available for a period of three months, Jan. 1 to March 31 of each year. Further detailed information will be given in this column at the time the next issue is available, which will be Jan. 1, 1953.

Ex-Slave, 111, Cast Her Vote For General

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Carrie Jackson, 111 years old, today cast her absentee vote here. It was for Eisenhower. She said Eisenhower reminded her of Abraham Lincoln, who freed her from slavery 87 years ago.

Mrs. Jackson is registered as being 109, but claims that lower age is a woman's perogative, that she is actually two years older.

Firemen Answer 106 Alarms Here During October

Sedalia fire companies answered a total of 106 fire alarms during the month of October, the greatest number of alarms the Sedalia companies have ever received in a single month. The total of runs for the year went to 347, compared with 388 for all of 1951.

Luckily the fires were all brought under control before any appreciable damage resulted. More than 95 per cent of the calls were to fires of burning trash, dry grass and weeds.

The number of runs for October was approximately one-third of the number of runs usually made by the companies in an average year run, which is slightly more than 300. This year, however, the runs are averaging more than a run-a-day up to Nov. 1.

City officials praised Sedalians Saturday for the manner in which they had responded to the "state of emergency" fire appeal made Friday. This order made by Mayor Studer, Chief of Police Ed Neighbors and Fire Chief John Lueck, asked all residents not to start grass or trash fires.

This emergency order will stand until weather conditions change and a drenching rain has fallen. Offenders are subject to arrest and prosecution in the city police court.

Children Escape Death In Blaze

LANCASTER, Mo., Nov. 1—(AP)—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Zarr were overcome by smoke but were rescued from a fire that destroyed their farm home early last night.

Donna, 6, was still under a doctor's care today suffering from effects of the smoke and light skin burns. Becky, 3, and Nancy, eight months, had recovered fully.

A neighbor, Arlen Drummons, first noticed the blaze in the second story as he was driving by about 5:30 p. m. He turned up the lane to the house, three-fourths of a mile from the road, and blew his car horn.

Mr. and Mrs. Zarr, who were in the barn milking, heard the alarm and ran to the house where they broke a window into the living room. They found the three girls lying unconscious on the floor. The Zarrs' sons, Charles, 7, and Rickey, 5, had been with them at the barn.

All household goods were destroyed except a washing machine, cook stove, two chairs and a mattress on the baby's bed.

Truman Sees Win By Adlai After Finale

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Truman wound up the most strenuous campaign of his career tonight with a forecast of victory for Adlai E. Stevenson — and a warning of national disaster if Dwight D. Eisenhower is elected instead.

"We would have the ultimate irony of a general who stood for the defense of the free world when he was in uniform, presiding over the liquidation of our foreign policy," the President declared.

Truman's final speech of the 1952 campaign was prepared for delivery in the same Missouri city where he ended his own 1948 fight for his election to the White House.

"I finished my 1948 campaign in St. Louis and we won," Truman said. "We're going to win again this time."

Then in an address bristling with barbed attacks on Eisenhower and the GOP leadership the President summed up the case he has made for Stevenson in some 18,000 miles of campaigning through 30 states from coast to coast.

He travelled farther and spoke oftener in 1948 — but that campaign was spread over a longer period and the President was four years younger.

Tonight, a hale if somewhat presently weary 68, Truman let fly at Eisenhower with the old familiar "give 'em hell" fervor.

He accused the general of using campaign tactics on Korea which "have already begun to undermine our unity in the struggle against communism."

He said Eisenhower had been using "the came kind of innuendo and distortion" in his speeches that have come to be known as "McCarthyism — a shocking and terrifying thing."

And he dropped into his speech a new side-swipe at Eisenhower, saying the general as recently as four years ago favored lower pay for new soldiers.

"Back in 1948," Truman said, "he (Eisenhower) testified before a committee of Congress that he thought draftees should not receive any pay except cigarette money."

Truman hit Eisenhower hardest on the issues of foreign policy and McCarthyism.

RUHR ROARS AGAIN—Newschart above shows the tremendous rise in German steel production since 1946 when the industrial Ruhr began pulling itself out of war-wrought shambles. The Germans estimate they'll produce 15½ million tons of steel this year, 16½ million in 1953 and 20 million a year by 1957.

Ike, Adlai Share Doodle Popularity

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—Linen supply men here say the result of the presidential election here Tuesday is "a toss up."

They based their prediction on the number of times the names "Ike" and "Adlai" were doodled on restaurant table cloths sent to them for cleaning.

George Fink, manager of one of the supply houses, came up with his explanation of the names on the tableclothes:

"They scribble the name of their own candidate to keep from listening to the other fellow's argument."

Adlai Feels He Will Win The Big Job

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—(AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson wound up 32,000 miles of campaign traveling in 37 states with the declaration tonight there is an "electric feeling of victory in the air" for the Democrats Tuesday.

At the same time, the Democratic candidate delivered a slashing attack on his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, charging that he has offered a "strange picture" in the campaign.

In a speech prepared for a rally in Chicago Stadium, which was preceded by a motorcade through the downtown area, Stevenson pictured Eisenhower as "an anguished, reluctant, respected figure reciting distasteful words, shaking hands that made him shudder, walking in strange, dark alleys, caught in a clamor of conflicting voices."

"That picture, I fear, appeals not just to soft hearts but to soft heads," the Illinois governor asserted.

He scoffed at what he said were the views held by some persons that the Republican nominee will be the "old Eisenhower" after the election.

"Well, I don't believe it and neither do they," Stevenson said.

"This suggestion that he will double-cross his new-found friends as soon as he gets into office does credit neither to the general's integrity nor to Sen. Taft's vigilance."

Stevenson chose the windup of the campaign to make one of the most blistering assaults on Eisenhower that he has made in all the campaign.

Stevenson declared that if Gen. Eisenhower is elected president it would mean the "most reactionary elements" in the Republican party would run the country. He also asserted an Eisenhower victory would mean "the vindication of squalid tactics" in the dying days of the campaign.

These assertions came at the end of a whistle-stop train trip through Ohio and Indianapolis during which Stevenson hit at the "false promises" of Republicans and made a strongly worded defense of the Korean War.

In his Chicago speech, Stevenson made it clear that he included Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin among reactionary elements of which he was speaking.

Ike Confident Of 'Crusade's' Popularity

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is roaring down the stretch of his first political campaign, buoyantly confident that his strategy of unrelenting attack and a promise to clean out Washington has been a winning one.

Although the Republican presidential nominee was forced over to the defensive at times, at the end it was continuous, ceaseless, hammering attack, built around the spearhead of the Korean War as the overshadowing issue of the campaign finale. On war he spoke as the victorious general of Western Allied forces in the greatest world conflict.

Hammers At Korean Trip

Eisenhower used the Korean issue now and then all the way, since he first started the heavy cannonading around Labor Day. But once he voiced his "I shall go to Korea" pledge in Detroit a week ago last night, he never let up on it.

The general and his advisers believe he is striking political pay dirt with the issue. Crowds give him a tremendous hand every time he repeats that he intends to go to Koera, if elected—regardless of criticism from Democrats.

At a hall out in Queens Borough in New York Wednesday night, Eisenhower told a small but highly enthusiastic audience that once more American boys are fighting and dying for freedom.

Questions Need For Korea

"But did they have to do it?" Eisenhower stormed. "That is the question. Did they have to do it?"

And a roar of "No, no," came back from the crowd.

Reaction was similar in many other places.

Korea and all the other issues—change, Communism, corruption—have been put together into what the Republican candidate calls his "great crusade"—a crusade in which he believes victory now is only two days away. He sized it up this way to a crowd at Lancaster, Pa., last Monday:

"It is on the march. Everywhere we find the enthusiasm swelling, confidence growing. And there is going to be the biggest cleanout on Jan. 20, 1953, that Washington has yet had the good fortune to witness."

Woman at 70 Has Campaign To Get Out Vote

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Meet Cornelia P. Burrell of Little Falls, N.Y.

For most of her 70-odd years she has left politicking to the men folks and concentrated on other good works, such as the Community Chest, the local Pine Crest Sanatorium, the Presbyterian church and the PTA.

This year, however, Mrs. Burrell has made it her personal responsibility to see that every citizen of Little Falls goes to the polls next Tuesday. For the last few months she has been making speeches, leading rallies, heading discussion groups, ringing doorbells and spending hours on the telephone urging her friends to get into the big push.

So successful has she been that the community of Little Falls has been spotlighted as a national model by the American Heritage Foundation, an organization dedicated to the same job on a national scale.

Of course many Little Falls citizens have taken part in the campaign to pile up a record vote, but Mrs. Burrell seems to have sparked the whole thing—and she's been having a whale of a good time doing it. Asked how she happened to jump into the campaign with both feet after a lifetime detachment from the political scene, she said:

"Because it was brought to my attention, as never before, that so small a percentage of eligible voters had cast their vote in previous elections.

"Because we, women, homemakers, certainly have not only a greater percentage of the vote, but we have in our hands the moulding of future citizens, for whom we desire so greatly an America of which we can be justly and honestly proud."

Mrs. Burrell has four daughters, one son and 13 grandchildren. She keeps 24 beds made up all the time at Diamond Hill, the big family home outside Little Falls, just in case any of her family comes home. But she finds time to "mother" the whole community, always ready with cheery help wherever it is needed.

Despite her years, she plays golf and tennis, swims and maintains a ski run near her country home. She's good with a toboggan, too.

Fighing Rights Cause Quarrel

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkey and Greece — close military partners in NATO — are trying to patch up a neighborly quarrel over fishing rights in the historic Aegean Sea.

Every now and then the Turkish coast guard fires on and captures a Greek fishing trawler on charges of poaching in Turkish coastal waters. Sometimes a fisherman is wounded. Small fines or a month's imprisonment may follow.

The bickering goes on despite a recently signed agreement between the two countries regulating fishing off the Turkish coast. Neither the Turkish nor Greek parliament has ratified this as yet, and it's likely to be revised at further talks.

It's not openly admitted by either side but in the background is a Turkish attempt to control widespread smuggling including drug traffic, carried on by well-organized groups. The smugglers, informants say, use high - speed fishing trawlers.

Spring Lures Cure-Seekers

MANILA (AP) — Thousands of persons seeking a cure - all for various ailments have converged on a Philippine village just north of Manila in Central Luzon lured by the waters of a spring.

The spring was said to have been discovered by a sick woman who dreamed the village's patron saint told her to look for the spring near a chapel and use the waters to cure herself. According to the report, the woman was cured four days after bathing in the water.

Romantic Love Not Alone Enough Foundation for Maritial Success

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP) — "Romantic love alone is not a strong enough foundation on which to build a successful marriage. The emotion does not sustain itself."

You have that from one of the most experienced marriage counsellors in the world. Happily married for 19 years, Dr. David Mace is a co-founder of the National Marriage Guidance Council of Great Britain, which has counseled tens of thousands. He is now professor of human relations at Drew University, Madison, N. J.

"The belief that romantic love is the most important ingredient in a successful marriage is one of the major causes in marriage failures today," he says.

"I do not mean to sound supercilious about romantic love. It is a fine thing and I believe strongly in it. But the emotion is not self-sustaining. It is a useful factor in getting a marriage well launched. It is like a rocket that helps a heavily laden plane take off. Once the plane is in the air, it should be able to proceed under the power of its own engines. But if it has nothing but rockets, it will nose dive.

"People who overemphasize the importance of romantic love tend to think that marriage is a state of feeling—and it is not. It is an achievement which, like everything else worth while, comes only as a result of hard work. If you believe marriage is a state of feeing, you don't believe there's any work to be done, so, when confronted with the task of adjustment, you just quit.

"That's what tens of thousands are doing today. They don't know it, but they are rejecting marriage. They hop from one to another in an increasingly desperate attempt to retain a state of romantic ecstasy. It's a refusal to accep life as it is.

"The only way to achieve real relationships is through a painful process of mutual adjustment. It's this that the romanticists spend their lives running away from. They think they know all about love, but they don't know what love means."

Dr. Mace says sexual maladjustment is an important factor in a large number of unhappy marriages, but its cause is as often emotional and spiritual as it is biological.

"Establish a unity in the aims and activities of life, and sexual adjustment can follow," he says.

"Marriage is a task not a free gift handed to us on a gold plate. It requires a quality of affinity between two people, which deepens into abiding comradeship.

"Love is an important ingredient—but it should be the kind that is capable of loving someone else as well as you love yourself. Character is important too — the capacity for consideration, unselfishness, kindness, forgiveness and generosity. A good marriage also needs a community of interests and common standards — common respect for beauty, goodness and truth."

The widespread crashing of hasty war marriages spurred Dr. Mace to help found the National Marriage Guidance Council, whose London headquarters he headed for seven years. He is vice president of the council, which now has government support and a network of 100 branch offices.

Dr. Mace's years of study of marriage problems convinced him romantic love often prevents people from using their brains in mate selection; that is, from stopping to think what life with a certain person would be like.

Volunteer Firemen Leave Cows

By TOM ADEN

BOISE, Nov. 2. (AP) — The fire truck was speeding out of town over icy roads when the tire chains — important winter equipment in Idaho — broke.

A service station attendant replaced them. "Assistant Fire Chief" Pete Onederra told him to send the bill to Triangle Dairy.

"How many people have you ever billed for fighting a fire," the attendant asked.

"None," replied Onederra.

"Okay," was the reply. "You'll get no bill from me."

That's the way most of the people around Boise and surrounding towns feel about the Triangle Dairy volunteer fire department.

Milking cows takes a back seat to eating smoke when there's a fire nearby. The dairy's employes go to anything from a smoking haystack to a blazing lumber mill, and fight the fire for nothing.

"Of course we get a lot of good will from it, and sometimes we get a donation which we spend for more fire equipment," says John Tate, co-owner of the dairy with his brother David.

The volunteer department has been in operation more than five years. The largest fire on the Tate brothers' own property has been in a haystack. But during that time the department has fought an average of a fire a week for others, saving thousands of dollars worth of property.

The Tate brothers started worrying about fire protection at their dairy farm outside Boise's city limits in 1947. They bought a pump and mounted it on a 1934 model truck.

The first rescue mission was a mis-fire. Dairy employes spotted a shed burning nearby, and drove to it, anxious to try out the new pump. The owner wouldn't let them. He was burning it down to get rid of it.

Pretty soon, though, a truck caught fire on the highway and they extinguished it. They discovered they needed an axe, so one was added. A night call to a burning house revealed the need for flashlights. New items were added after nearly every call—ladders, more hose, a water tank, helmets and raincoats—until a complete set of fire-fighting equipment had been accumulated.

They discovered also there was more to fighting blazes than merely pouring on water. They took instruction from Boise firemen.

The department never turns down a call—even those like the one from a woman who called at 2 a. m. to report that a pipe had burst and her basement was flooding. Onederra drove over and pumped out the water.

"All boys, you know, go through a stage of wanting to be a policeman or fireman," says Tate. "I guess we just havn't grown up."

Van Gogh's Paintings Shown

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Spring was announced in this foggy Northern Italian city this year by a brilliant exhibition of Vincent Van Gogh's most colorful paintings.

Every day thousands of visitors from all parts of Italy crowd the large halls of the former royal palace, where Van Gogh's paintings are displayed.

Reproductions of his yellow-brown portraits face you in the streetcars, tramways and trains. Born 99 years ago in Zundert, Holland, Van Gogh's paintings were first displayed in Venice a few years ago and caught the eyes of the visitors by their clear Mediterranean colors.

EVER TRY A CHEW, GIRLS?—Academy Award winner Anne Baxter, left, may have Hollywood all agog over her liking for small cigars, but the girls back in Boston aren't too impressed. Anne learned to relish the ladylike stogies on location in Quebec, where she was introduced to the delights of the weed by film director Alfred Hitchcock. However, Mrs. Evelyn Frye, right, of Medford, Mass., has been smoking a pipe for some time, and Boston tobacconists say many Eastern girls enjoy a hearty smoke.

Governor Suspends All Hunting, Fishing, Outdoor Activities

JEFFERSON CITY — Acting upon advice of the Conservation Commission, Gov. Forrest Smith has suspended all outdoor activities in Missouri with his declaration of a state of emergency. All state parks and public use areas are closed, with personnel of these areas on 24-hour fire guard.

The Conservation Commission recommended to the Governor Friday that he use his emergency powers to close hunting and fishing seasons in order to alleviate even more critical fire conditions that might arise if additional sportsmen were in the field.

Previously the Commission felt that premature postponement of deer and quail seasons would be prejudicial to the hunter since most fires to date have occurred while hunting is at its lowest ebb in the state. It was hoped that rain might defer closing of all outdoor activities.

However, during the past week forest acreage lost to fire has tripled and long-range weather forecasts offer no immediate signs of relief. Reports from the prairie regions indicated possibly worse conditions there.

In view of the situation, the Conservation Commission decided that drastic action was required. The Commission can control only hunting and fishing activities, while action is needed on all outdoor recreational fronts. Further, the Commission cannot act quickly enough to meet the urgent situation because of a Constitutional provision which requires a ten-day filing period before new regulations can be put into force. It therefore decided to request that the Governor exercise emergencypower suspending all outdoor recreational activity for the duration of the present critical period.

Did You Ever Try This?

by Mildred Bowman

Make an interesting centerpiece for your Christmas dining table from that wooden rolling pin that has been replaced by a glass one in your kitchen.

Just bore three holes the size of candles along the top; then nail a small block of wood at each end of the rolling pin to keep it from rolling on your table.

Usually the handles are painted black, but of course, the roller itself is left the natural wood finish. Candles may be arranged in graduated lengths or you may use all three the same size. Orange candles with bittersweet or autumn leaves arranged around the rolling pin and this season's dinner party will get to rolling.

A musical program was interspersed throughout the meeting.

Flags and flowers decorated the auditorium and the luncheon was served in the church dining room, which was attraetive with Hallowe'en and autumn decorations. Each state officer and regional officer was present with a corsage made of large chrysanthemums and tulle in either bronze or white. Favors were in keeping with Hallowe'en.

Hymn of Month By Wordsworth

The Helen G. Steele Music Club, in cooperation with the National Federation of Music Clubs, gives the following review of the Hymn of the Month, "Oh, Lord of Heaven and Earth and Sea."

The hymn was written by Christopher Wordsworth, who was born in Lambeth, England, Oct. 30 ,1807, and died in Harewood on March 20, 1885. He was a nephew of the poet Wordsworth and a son of Christopher Wordsworth, master of Trinity College, Cambridge. He was educated at Winchester and Trinity colleges and was a brilliant student, showing considerable promise as an athlete.

After serving as a lecturer of his college, public orator for the university, headmaster of the school at Harron and canon of Westminster, he was made Bishop of Lincoln. Although a diligent writer, and preparing a commentary on the Bible, he was best known for his Holy Year, published in 1862.

He insisted the first duty of a hymn is to teach sound doctrine and to save souls.

Schwabe, Sen. Hawkins Speak At GOP Rally

A Republican rally was held Friday night in the Assembly Room at the Courthouse and Max Schwabe, candidate for Congress, and State Senator C. R. (Ted) Hawkins were the principal speakers. Kroenke's band entertained a large crowd with an open air concert preceeding the meeting, which was presided over by Carl G. Schrader, Republican county chairman.

Mr. Schwabe said there were two basic, fundamental issues in this campaign, that of high taxation and that of the Korean war. They both were potentially dangerous, he said, as history shows that when one - third of a nation's income is taxed from the people, the nation so taxing falls. As for the Korean war, Mr. Schwabe said "the prosperity pump used to be primed with dollars, now it is primed with the blood of our youth on the hills of Korea."

Senator Hawkins of Brumley said, "Fire is burning tens of thousands of acres of good Missouri land tonight, but there is a fire that is burning the very soul of America. This is the most serious time our people have ever faced. If all the officials that are corrupt in our national and state government were indicted today, they would have to build new jails to hold them. As a parting thought I would leave this with you — 21,000 American boys cannot vote Nov. 4, because they have already paid their last full measure of devotion in Korea."

Tigers Stop Four Husker Threats

MU Defense Slams Door On Nebraska For 10-6 Victory

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 1 (AP) — Missouri broke a fiercely-fought football game with Nebraska open with startling suddenness in the third quarter today as the Tigers held their Big Seven Conference lead on a 10 to 6 victory.

The teams had entered the game with Missouri leading the conference on two victories and no defeats and Nebraska tied with Oklahoma for second place on two victories, no defeats and one tie.

As a result of today's defeat, Nebraska dropped behind Oklahoma, which defeated Iowa State.

The Missouri touchdown that broke a scoreless tie in the third quarter came after that club had stalled off four Nebraska scoring bids in the period.

Missouri stalled the fourth one on the Missouri 22 and with little more than a minute left of the third period took advantage of a slight wind and punted on first down to the Nebraska 31.

The punt turned out even better than Missouri had counted on, for on the next play, a John Bordogna pitchout to Ray Novak bounced off Novak's hand and into the clutches of Missouri Ed Merrifeld.. Marrifeld had only to loaf 30 yards to the goal line and he did this with an escort of two blockers, just to make it certain. Paul Fuchs kicked the extra point.

The next time Missouri got its hands on the ball, the Tigers traveled from their own 20 to Nebraska's 12-yard line from where Fuchs sewed up the game with a placekick that barely cleared the crossbar.

Before Missouri began its scoring, the crowd of 39,000, largely Nebraskans but with a few thousand Missourians, had been certain that Nebraska was going to score either by its own efforts or by the breaks.

Nebraska had started the second half with a 65-yard kickoff return by Bill Thayer to the Missouri 25. That drive died on the Missouri 14.

Moments later, Nebraska was back in scoring position again on a Missouri fumble. Again Missouri held firm, only to fumble the next time they had the ball on their 8. They held this time oin their 13, and then for the fourth time on their 13, and for the fourth time on their 22 before Merrifeld staged his scoring jaunt.

Nebraska picked up its touchdown with six seconds left in the game when Bordogna lofted a long high desperation pass that Andy Loehr grabbed on the Missouri 15 and ran over. The play carried 64 yards.

Jeff City Pins 14-0 Paint Job On Favored MMA

Jefferson City's unpredictable Jays threw the Central Missouri Conference race into a scramble Saturday night by trouncing the favored Missouri Military Cadets, 14-0, on the MMA gridiron.

Harold Normant, Jay halfback, broke the game wide open with an 18-yard touchdown sprint midway in the third quarter after Bob Halliday had recovered an MMA bobble on the Cadet 22. Bob Mackie, the Jay extra-point artist, kicked the point.

Halliday put the game on ice after 5½-minutes had elapsed in the final period with a 25-yard TD return of an intercepted Cadet pass. Mackie again booted the point.

This victory puts added importance on the Sedalia-MMA contest at Liberty Park this Friday. A Mexico victory, will throw the CMC race into a three-way tie among MMA, Columbia and Jefferson City. All of them have one CMC loss.

Engineers Play All Their Aces; Rip Duke, 28-7

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP)—Georgia Tech's fabled race horse backfield aces—Leon Hardeman, Glenn Turner and Billy Teas—broke loose in a thundering stampede of touchdowns today to crush hitherto unbeaten Duke, 28-7, in Dixie's battle of gridiron giants.

It was the 21st game without defeat and the seventh straight victory of the year for the slashing men of Atlanta, who needed only to pick up the telephone to receive a bid from either the Sugar or Orange Bowl.

Representatives of these two Jan. 1 fixtures were in the sellout crowd of 45,000, which was awed by the speed and ferocity of the Engineer attack.

It was reported later that both bowls had proffered bids, but coach Bobby Dodd lets his players vote on where they should go.

Hitting with tremendous power on the ground, Tech scored two touchdowns in the opening period and added scores in the second and third before Duke aroused itself for one scoring burst late in the third quarter.

Maryland Shows Power In Rout Of Boston U.

BOSTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—A devastating opening attack that reached almost point-a-play proportions gave mighty Maryland its 19th consecutive football victory, 34-7, over hopelessly outclassed Boston University today at Fenway Park.

The Terps from Maryland, who rank second nationally, clinched matters by scoring thrice on 29 plays during the opening period.

Army Overpowers VMI In Big Game Warmup

WEST POINT, N.Y. Nov. 1 (AP)—Army warmed up for its big engagement with Georgia Tech next week by smashing Virginia Military Institute, 42 to 14, in a free wheeling contest at Michie Stadium today.

Peter Vann's fine passing and the brilliant ball carrying of Fred Attaya and Mario Delucia enabled the Cadets to score almost at will in the final three periods after the boys from the South had fought them off 7-7 for a quarter.

Detroit Nips Fordham As Marchibroda Stars

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Ted Marchibroda was a fighting fiend today, completing 11 of 22 passes for 253 yards to set up all four Detroit touchdowns and lead the Titans to an upset 28-20 football triumph over favored Fordham at Triboro Stadium. The talented aerialist received scintillating aid from end Ed Beirne, who was on the receiving end of eight of his passes, two over the goal line.

The Rams, who suffered their fourth straight defeat, aided the Titans' cause considerably, committing three blunders that led to as many Detroit scores.

Badgers Slam Rice In Slow, Dull Game

HOUSTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Young Jim Haluska scored one touchdown and passed for two more as Wisconsin shrugged off torrid Texas heat and Rice Institute, 21-7.

It was a dull exhibition of fumbling, penalty ridden football that an estimated 36,000 persons sat in 78 degree weather to watch.

They saw Wisconsin dominate the game even more than the scoreboard showed.

The Badgers ground out 224 yards rushing and kicked up 139 more in the air while holding Rice to a puny 75 on the ground and 92 in the air.

It was Rice's fifth straight licking and brought Wisconsin — a prime Big Ten title favorite and Rose Bowl contender—its fourth win against two defeats.

Illinois Upsets Michigan, 22-13

ANN ARBOR, Mich., No. 1 (AP)—Illinois came up off the Big Ten floor today to smack Michigan with a 22 to 13 upset that tarred the Wolverines' Rose Bowl chances and gave the Illini their first victory in four conference games this season.

A crowd of 64,752 screaming fans saw the fired-up Illinois team score all its points in the first half of the game played in perfect autumn weather.

From the first moment when Illinois' Frank Wodziak blocked a punt attempt by Michigan's Bill Billings for a safety, Michigan was on its way to its first conference loss in four games.

Cameron Sparks UCLA Victory Over Cal Bears

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP)—Rangy Paul Cameron, playing his first full game of the season, led the undefeated UCLA Bruins to a smashing 28-7 win over the California Bears today in their annual football clash, played before 82,000 fans.

The 6-foot, 185-pound tailback, who had seen only 40 minutes of action in six previous games, threw touchdown passes in the first and third quarters and directed the ground attack that accounted for the second period score.

Tiny Ted Narleski, replacing Cameron late in the last period, completed a 21-yard scoring pass to end Ike Jones for the last touchdown.

Left half Don Johnson, racing 98 yards on a thrilling kickoff return, gave California its lone touchdown in the third period.

The victory kept the hard-knocking, alert Bruins in the Pacific Coast Conference championship race and in the running for the Rose Bowl, tied with Southern California, also undefeated.

UCLA tops the league with four wins. USC, idle today, has won three.

Michigan State Pins Stubborn Purdue, 14-7

LAFAYETTE, Ind. Nov. 1 (AP)—Michigan State's top-ranked and beautifully-balanced Spartans showed their offensive prowess in the first half and their copper-clad defense all the way today in stopping Purdue's Big Ten football leaders, 14-7.

It was the Spartans' 21st straight victory.

Purdue, left alone atop the Western Conference standings by Illinois' 22-13 triumph over Michigan today, gave the Spartans their stiffest contest since an early season 17-14 squeak past Oregon State.

Michigan State's ferocious defense, headed by end Ed Luke and center Douglas Weaver, had all it could do to hold Purdue in a wild final quarter before 49,500 fans in Ross-Ade Stadium in summer-like weather.

Weed's Boot Breaks O-State, Wildcat Tie

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 1 (AP) The smallest player in the Big Ten, 128-pound Tad Weed, booted a difficult 17-yard field goal to climax a 17-point fourth period rally which gave Ohio State a thrilling 24-21 victory over Northwestern today.

Trailing 21-7 entering the final quarter of this nationally-televised conference game, Ohio State punched across two touchdowns for a 21-21 tie and then Weed calmly booted his deciding three-pointer with six minutes left.

Weed, 5-feet-5 and solely a kicking specialist, also converted after the three Ohio touchdowns.

SCORING

Raytown: Touchdowns — Schoeller, 2, Pratt, Allison, Bell Erisman.
Conversions—Johnson 3, Schoeller.

Raytown's power-laden Bluejays turned Hallowe'en into a nightmare for the Smith-Cotton Tigers as they breezed to a 40-0 decision over Sedalia in a non-conference encounter played in Raytown.

It was a night of many tricks by the phantom Jay backfield, and one of a few treats for coach Ralph Dow's hard-pressed Tigers. Time after time Raytown swept one of their jackrabbit backs around a Smith-Cotton flank, and when the Tiger secondary closed-in, halfbacks Jim Allison and Tom Pratt made life miserable with accurate passes.

There was little doubt as to the outcome after the contest was only seven plays-old . Sedalia returned the kickoff to the 30 and proceeded to lose the ball on a fumble on their third effort. Four plays later Raytown quarterback Bob Schoeller went over from the one on a sneak. The big gainer in this series wasa 25-yard ramble around Sedalia's left end by halfback Tommy Pratt. Tackle Bob Johnson booted the extra point to make it 7-0.

The stunned Tigers failed to make ten yards in three tries after the next kickoff and were forced to punt from their 36. Tiger quarterback Buck Bennett, one of the few bright spots for Sedalia, responded with a 54-yard beauty which went out on the Jay 20.

Buck's Kick Wasted

But his effort quickly went up in smoke. On the first play Schoeller sprinted around his left side for 15; Pratt added 11 at the opposite end; Pratt hammered tackle for 5; Schoeller added a like amount around left end; Allison threaeded his way to 21-yds. and a first down on the Sedalia 15. A fumble slowed the drive down momentarily, but Pratt then flipped a pass to end Bill Bell for a first down on the 2, and Pratt rammed right tackle for the score. Johnson missed the kick.

The quarter ended after Sedalia had failed to make a first down and Raytown had three long runs, including a touchdown, called back for rule infractions.

It was more of the same during the second period.

Sedalia got a lift when Bennett intercepted an Allison aerial on the Tiger 31 shortly after the quarter opened.

Tigers Use The Spread

The Tigers then went into the spread formation for the first time, this year, but the switch quickly backfired when Raytown intercepted Bennett's second toss on the midfield stripe.

This Jay series lasted six plays with Schoeller scooting the final six yards. The drive was spearheaded by a 34-yard trip by Schoeller and a 12-yard sprint by Allison. Johnson added the point from placement.

Sedalia again used the spread on their next series, which was highlighted by Bennett's 19-yard run up the slot before another pass was stolen by the Jays on their 36.

Allison engineered a seven-play scoring drive which ended in his TD from the 2. On this trip it was a 33-yard pass, Allison to end Jim Green, whicl. set-up the toucher. Don Erisman missed the point with a minute and 52 seconds left in the half to make the score 26-0.

The Tiger spread again failed, and Bennett kicked out on the Raytown 47. With only 25 seconds left Allison hit Schoeller on the 7, and threw to end Bill Bell for the score. Johnson booted the point with only nine seconds left to make the count, 33-0.

Whatever Dow said at the intermission, he should have said it earlier because his team looked entirely different in the second half.

The third quarter was strictly give-and-take. Raytown had a 58-yard touchdown run by Erisman called back due to a penalty, and Sedalia's Dave Lingle piloted a drive which carried to the Raytown 20 before a pass interception ended the threat.

Two Sedalia Drives Fail

During the fourth period Smith-Cotton twice battered its way inside the Raytown 15, once going to the one-foot line only to be stopped by a penalty and once losing the ball on downs on the Raytown 10. Three men, Lingle, Bennett and fullback Jim Schmidt sparked these thrusts.

After Raytown stopped Sedalia's last threat on their 10 (with only 52 seconds left in the game), they racked-up their final score. It took two plays—a 21yard gallop by Pratt and Erisman's 69-yard TD flyer around end. Schoeller ran the count to 40- by running the point after a fake kick.

That was the ball game, although there was time for one more kickoff play which saw Sedalia return to its 16.

The contest marked the seventh win of the season for Raytown and the year's fourth loss for the Tigers—it also was Sedalia's worst loss in many moons, and their first defeat by Raytown.

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

FARMERS are happy with the state of emergency which was declared Friday by Gov. Forrest Smith due to the extreme dry weather conditions. In the past few days many farmers have posted their farms, others had advertised in the local newspapers warning hunter to stay off their farm lands. DON'T BLAME THE FARMER FOR THIS ACTION—IT HAS BECOME NECESSARY.

As a matter of fact real sportsmen did not have to have these warnings, but the ordinary hunter—one who cares nothing for anyone but his own hunting luck—have caused the situation to become what it is. Dry as it is several hunters have appeared in the country, have been run off of several farms and in fact shown resentment over being ordered off the property.

Could it be that some of these resentful hunters could have started some of these country fires. I am sure they didn't, although it is possible.

Every farmer who is listed in the various ads that are appearing in the paper I have found to be rather good fellows. In fact the great majority of them I know as sportsminded and are helpful to the sportsmen when he comes to his farm to hunt. But under present dry conditions their patience have been strained and they should not be compelled to take such action, yet they have been forced to it.

May I appeal to you hunters to show your cooperation, go along with the farmers desire—AND YOU HAD BETTER GO ALONG WITH THE GOVERNOR'S STATE OF EMERGENCY —otherwise you may find yourself in more hot water than you would desire.

LAST Thursday night out south of Sedalia during that timber fire on the Asa Robertson farm, I talked with a farmer who has some excellent quail hunting ground—but he fears to let a hunter come on his land because of fire hazards. He is one of several hundred who will help a hunter find a covey of quail when hunting conditions are normal, in fact he enjoys accompanying the hunters—but now he is bitter toward that hunter who insists upon becoming a trespasser instead of a sportsman.

The drought is not the fault of the farmer, but a flip of a lighted cigaret, cigar or match could cause him to lose everything he has worked for in his lifetime. It could even cost the life of the farmer, his family or even volunteer fire fighters called because of this carelessness.

So heed the requests, warnings and the Governor's order and stay out of trouble.

YOU will note in the grid pix for the week all three of us "experts" missed the Warrensburg-Springfield; Missouri-Nebraska football games. We picked Springfield to beat Warrensburg; Nebraska to beat Missouri and missed. However, we lowered our percentage a few points because we tried to out figure the figures—but we do not begrudge Warrensburg and Missouri for winning.

As one said it we would rather see Missouri and Warrensburg win (more often) than to increase our percentages.

SMITH-COTTON has one more game to go—Missouri Military Academy from Mexico. That will be another Central Missouri Conference tilt—and odds are it is going to be a real tilt.

The trouncing given the Tigers was bad Friday night. M.M.A. defeated Columbia; Columbia defeated Jefferson City; and then to mess up things the Jays came through to beat M.M.A. 14-0. But it all boils down to the fact the Tigers are in for lots and lots of trouble Friday night.

FULL CRY magazine published in Sedalia by Mrs. Estella H. Walker, gives us some more information on these $1,000 coon dogs recently purchased by R. M. Evans at Holden. It seems Mr. Evans bought a valuable dog at $1,000 from Cliff Johnson, Clarinda, Ia., named "Iowa Jack". The dog was taken back to Holden and died a few days later .

Mr. Evans wasn't to be stopped in keeping up a fine string of registered dogs and wanting the best paid $1,000 to Kenneth Cummings, route 1, Hughesville for "Red Man". The dog is considered one of the finest in the country having been one of the outstanding winners of ribbons and trophies in numerous field trials.

Tiger Harriers Place Seventh In State Meet

Paced by Crosby Brown, who placed 15th in a field of 130, Sedalia's cross-country team placed seventh in the state meet held Friday at Forest Park in St. Louis. Hadley Tech of St. Louis, which won four of the first ten spots, took first place.

Other finishers for coach Forest Arnall's Tiger squad were Gareld Lohnes 20th, Bob Smith 48th, Don Street 54th, Glen Stockstill 57th, Pat Brown 65th and Jim Ellis 80th.

Joe Underwood of Springfield who beat Brown in a meet held here last month, set a new state record by traveling the two-mile distance in 9:27.5 to crack the old mark held by Keith Bacon, also of Springfield.

Finishing behind Hadley and ahead of Smith-Cotton were St. Louis Beaumont, Springfield, Central of St. Louis, Kansas City Northeast and Vashon of St. Louis.

State To Reset Season On Deer; Keep Your Tag

JEFFERSON CITY — Hunters who have already purchased deer tags for the season which was to open Nov. 6, should hang on to them(the Conservation Commission said today. Another open season will be set as soon as the present state of emergency is declared over.

The Commission said that provisions for refunds on unused deer tags will be announced as soon as they are established.

Other seasons, either closed by the Governor's declaration of emergency, as in the case of rabbit, squirrel and waterfowl, or those seasons scheduled to open shortly, such as quail hunting and trapping of furbearers, are all in abeyance for the duration of the emergency. Fishing, camping and field trials are also suspended.

All seasons will operate in accordance with the fish and game regulations as soon as the ban is lifted. Should it, for instance, be raised on Nov. 15, the qual, squirrel, waterfowl, rabbit, coon, possum, fishing and other seasons would open at that time.

All hunting except deer and waterfowl are closed Nov. 1 through Nov. 9 under the Wildlife Code, opening again on Nov. 10 normally.

Colorado Pulls 1 Out Of Fire Against Utah

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 1 (AP)—Colorado University turned an intercepted pass into a game-winning touchdown today to defeat a Utah University football team that outplayed the Buffs most of the way. The score was 20 to 14.

The inspired Redskins, playing before a homecoming crowd of 15,028, tallied their first touchdown midway in the first period. They held the upper hand until the intercepted pass, with 2½ minutes left, gave the Golden Buffaloes the break that meant victory.

Defensive Guard Roy Shepard hauled in the Utah aerial, thrown by quarterback Don Rydalch, to give Colorado the ball on the Utah 40. With halfbacks Carroll Hardy and Woody Shelton doing most of the gaining the Buffaloes pounded to the Utah 16.

Hardy passed to quarterback Roger Williams, who caught the ball on the Utah 1. On the next play Williams smashed through center on a quarterback sneak to score the winning counter.

Utah, the pre-game underdog by several touchdowns, outgained Colorado, which earlier this season held the nation's third-ranked Oklahoma Cowboys to a tie, by 242 to 185 yards on the ground and 129 to 73 yards in the air.

Maryville grabbed o 21-0 lead in the first quarter, but Kirksville forged ahead in the third. Maryville's tying touchdown came in the last period on a 37-yard multiple pass play—Bob Hemenway to Ken Stevens to Paul Tobin. Then Reynolds kicked the winning point.

Jayhawks Recover In Time

Kansas Scores 20 In Third Quarter After K-Staters Tie Them At Half

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 1 (AP) Outplayed for a half, the Kansas Jayhawks used Gilbert Reich's passing and clutch running for three third quarter touchdowns in a 26-6 Big Seven Conference football victory over Kansas State's stout-hearted Wildcats here today.

The score was tied 6-6 at the half after Kansas State had completely dominated play. Reich, the ex-West Point star, switched from defensive duty to attacking quarterback at the start of the third period and it took him less than 10 minutes to fashion three quick Jayhawk touchdowns.

Reich passed 23 yards to Paul Leoni, rangy end, for the tie-breaking touchdown and a few minutes later hit the same Leoni for a 13-yarder that had Kansas State down to stay. Reich ran the ball one yard around end for the third touchdown of the period.

An estimated 16,500 fans saw the Kansas Jayhawks win their sixth game of the season against one defeat. It was the Jayhawks' third Big Seven win against one loss. It was Kansas State's fourth conference setback.

KU Opens With Flurry

Kansas, the nation's No. 9 team, traveled 80 yards from the opening kickoff for a touchdown and at that point it appeared the Jayhawks could call their own score.

But Kansas State, most thinly manned team in the Big Seven, wasn't to give up without a battle. The Wildcats moved the ball 60 yards to the Kansas 12 when they ran out of steam. A fumble recovery gave K-State the ball on the Kansas 19, seconds before the quarter ended and halfback Dick Towers scored on the third play of the second period.

The first Kansas touchdown was scored by halfback Bob Brandberry from the one foot line.

Charlie Hoag, Kansas' great halfback failed to score a touchdown, but caught passes that were key blows in the Jayhawks first two touchdowns and was a threat until leaving the game with a leg injury in the third quarter. The senior back carried 14 times for 47 yards and caught two passes for 67 yards.

Switzer Stars on Defense

Kansas State's Veryl Joe Switzer, playing a roving defense in the secondary made more tackles than any two men on the field in leading the Wildcats' defense.

Kansas State lost a scoring opportunity that would have given it a halftime lead when quarterback Carl Albacker fumbled the ball on the Kansas two yard line and Reich recovered for the Jayhawks.

A 58 yards pass interception return by Bob Dahnke had set up the Wildcats' threat.

Kansas' defense, which got extra tough in the second half, and Kansas State mistakes helped the Jayhawkers to their 20 points in the big third. Two short K-State punts put the Jayhawks in scoring territory for their second and third scores. A fumble on the Wildcats' 31 lead to the last touchdown.

Sumner Hi Beats Hubbard 47 To 0

The Hubbard High School Tigers traveled to Kansas City Kan., Saturday to meet the Sumner High School gridsters only to return home beaten 47-0.

Hubbard was no match for the more experienced, heavier ball club and were the underdogs from the first quarter. Sumner opened the first stanza with 22 points, and added another touchdown in the second, ending the half with a 28-0 lead. In the third quarter the Kansas aggregation added another TD and made the extra point and in the final quarter pushed across two more TD's.

Sumner also collected a safety in the opening quarter.

Next week the Tigers journey to Columbia to meet Douglass High School for their second meeting of the season. The Sedalians defeated Douglass here recently.

The New York Giants have won more National League championships than any other club. They have copped 14 flags. The Cubs are next with 10 while the Cardinals follow with nine pennants.

Friends Gather Corn For Injured Ray Hurt

Five farm neighbors of Raymond Hurt, Star Route, Sedalia, went to his home Tuesday afternoon and began gathering his 50-acres of corn. By Thursday afternoon the job was completed.

Mr. Hurt was injured severely two weeks ago in an automobile accident near Vandalia, Mo. He suffered an injury to his right collar bone and is unable to do his farm work.

The five men are Tom Reams, Gene Wagner, John Short, Sirel Todd and Leo Edwards, to whom the Hurt family are grateful.

Virgil Trucks of the Detroit Tigers was the only American League hurler to pitch a no - hitter during the '52 season and he twirled two of them.

Lefty Gomez holds the distinction of having the best won-lost record in World Series history. Lefty won six games and lost none.

OU's Express Keeps Rolling; Iowa State Outgunned, 41-0

AMES, Ia., Nov. 1(AP) The Oklahoma football express, rated No. 3 in the nation, rushed along at its customary dazzling pace today in a 41-0 victory over Iowa State.

Oklahoma, gunning for its seventh straight Big Seven Conference championship, sent the under-manned Cyclones to their fifth conference defeat with a bewildering offense led by quarterback Eddie Crowder, a young man with a magician's touch, and a solid defense that held Iowa State to 119 yards.

It was the 33rd conference game in which Oklahoma has not felt the sting of the losing score.

There are two ties in the string, one coming 21-21 from Colorado in the Sooners' opening conference test this season. The Oklahoma Big Seven record now is 3-0-1 with Missouri and Nebraska left. The Sooners are a shade behind Missouri, its No. 15 foe which made it three straight with a 10-6 win over Nebraska today.

OU Hits From All Distances

Oklahoma, striking with equal effectiveness from far out or close in, started its scoring with a 50-yard spurt by Billy Vessels through the Iowa State middle. The trap play got its inception on a beautiful fake by Crowder.

The Sooners picked up two more touchdowns for a 21-0 lead in the first period to settle whatever issue there ever had been in the one-sided contest.

Iowa State suffered a severe jolt in the first quarter when quarterback Dick Mann, the top passer, broke his left leg in a pileup involving Tom Catlin, who had intercepted a Mann pass on the Iowa State 34.

Oklahoma got another touchdown in the second period and added two more in the third. The Sooners, with reserves in action while most of the regulars rested for the big duel with Notre Dame next Saturday, did not score in the final period, officially at least.

Vessels took a lateral to cross the goal on a 46-yard play but Oklahoma had a backs-in-motion penalty against it.

Vessels-Reddell Pass Clicks

Vessels and end John Reddell participating in the next to the longest touchdown. It was a 40-yard pass-run maneuver in which Reddell made a neat over the shoulder grab of Vessells' toss on the 16.

Iowa State's big bid for a touchdown commenced late in the first period from its 20 and ended in disappointment on the Oklahoma 2 early in the second quarter when Paul Shupe was shunted back a yard after needing only one yard for the score on fourth down.

Vessels and Buck McPhail each scored twice for Oklahoma and finished almost in a dead heat for rushing honors. Vessels carried 13 times for 110 yards and Buck got 107 in 22 carries.

Buddy Leake, No. 1 halfback who has a bad ankle, did only conversion duty for Oklahoma. He totaled four and sent the Oklahoma record to 35 straight before missing on the fourth touchdown.

Blocked Kick Gives Tulsa 23-21 Win Over Sooner Ags

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP) Tulsa end Allen Cook blocked an Oklahoma A and M punt for an automatic safety in the second quarter today to provide Tulsa's Golden Hurricane with the winning margin in a 23-21 conquest of its old state rival OklahomaA and M.

The battle, which kept Tulsa's largest home crowd in five years—22,000—in their seats to the very end, gave the winners second place in the Missouri Valley Conference.

After the score, Tulsa still trailed by 12 points but the tally, coming in the dying moments of the first half, seemed to inspire the Hurricane in the last two periods.

Until this turning point, Tulsa had fumbled at least two scoring opportunitiesand its errors permitted the Aggies, opportunists all afternoon, to tally two first-period touchdowns. In all, the locals fumbled seven times and A and M recovered every one.

The second of four fumbles by Tulsa quarterback Ronnie Morris was recovered by Aggie tackle Dale Minert on the Hurricane 11. On the fourth play after, halfback Bill Bredde plunged over from the one for an Aggie score.

With only a minute and a half of the quarter left, Willard Fox intercepted a Morris pass and ran 30 yards for the score. Tulsa's safety made the halftime score, 14-2, Oklahoma A and M.

But it was an aroused Tulsa machine that fired back after the intermission. Its running and passing rolled up a game total of 406 yards, 230 on the ground.

The Hurricane defense held the Aggies deep in their own territory to start the third quarter, and Ken McCullough was forced to kick from deep in his own end zone, his boot, the shortest he got off all day, spiraled for 28 yards and Tulsa rambled from there.

Fullback Howard Waugh and halfbacks, Bobby Holladay and Dick Kercher took the ball to the Aggie one. Then Morris dived over for Tulsa's first touchdown.

A few moments later Morris passed to end Tom Miner for a 71-yard scoring play.

Waugh and Kercher then did yeoman work on a 74-yard push, climaxed by Morris' seven yard toss to Miner in the end zone.

The Aggies' Bredde returned the kickoff 48 yards and Don Babers ended a 33-yard advance with a four-yard aerial to McCullough. A and M's Dry attempted a 46-yard field goal in the waning moments but it was low and short.

Tulsa's victory was its 19th in the 38-year-old rivalry, against 11 losses and four ties.

Baylor Rallies To Tie-Up TCU

FT. WORTH, Tex., Nov. 1 (AP)—Baylor's Golden Bears fought from behind on the power of Parson Jerry Coody and the runs of Allen Jonesand L. G. Dupre to tie Texas Christian 20-20 today in a Southwest Conference football thriller.

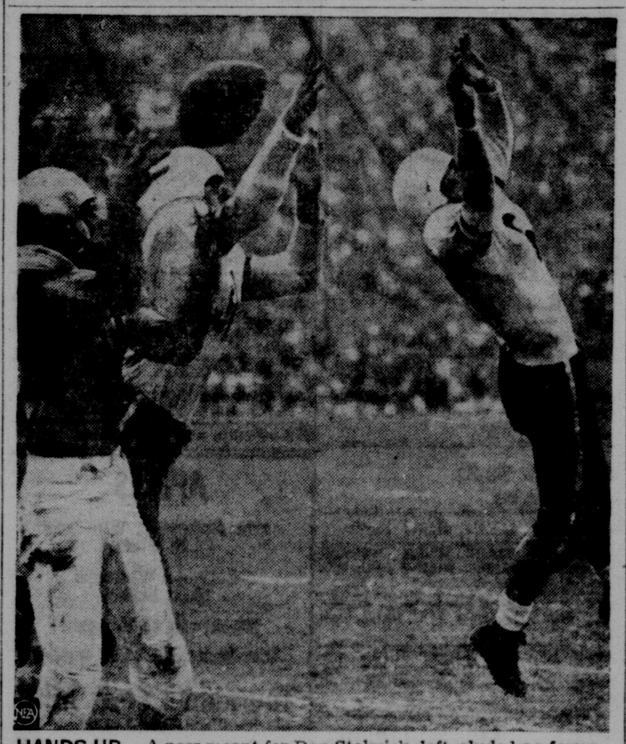
TCU had rolled to a crushing 20-7 lead in the second period as sophomore Ronald Clinkscale and blasting Malvin Fowler cashed in on Baylor miscues. But the Bears came back with a typical flourish—for Baylor. Three times this season they have won games in the last half and it looked like they would do it again today.

As the hushed crowd of 27,000 watched, C. O. Brocato, Baylor's man with the "money toe," tried for the point after touchdown that would have given the Bears victory but out of the smashing TCU line came Charley Rogers to throw himself in front of the ball before it was three feet from Brocato's foot.

Brocato has won four games and tied one with his gifted toe in the past two seasons but this wasn't his day.

Although Baylor had escaped defeat it still was virtually kicked out of the conference race. The tie also hurt TCU's chances. It was the second in a row for the Frogs and they now are charged with a full game in losses. Baylor has lost one, won one and tied one.

Tommy O'Boyle, Duke University's line coach, played football as a collegian at Tulane.



HANDS UP—A pass meant for Don Stalwick, left, eluded no fewer than six hands in the Los Angeles Coliseum, not only those of UCLA's halfback, but those of the Stanford defenders, Monteith, center, and Brazel. The Uclans won, 24-14. (NEA)

LaMonte Seniors Raise Trip Fund With Pie Supper

By Mrs. Earl Horton

LA MONTE — The senior class of La Monte High had a pie supper last Friday night, and it was a huge success. A jazz band played three selections, and Ronald Kloster sang a solo. The boys and girls chorus sang "Dry Bones", and Miss Frances Jean Burford, music teacher or LaMonte district, played several piano selections.

One of the most hilarious bits of the evening was "Little Red Riding Hood" by four of the boys. The highlight of the program was a style show by the seniors, with the girls dressed as boys, and boys dressed as girls.

First prize for girls went to Maxine Moore, and first for boys to Emmett Rice.

Don Davis, Green Ridge, was the auctioneer. The seniors cleared more than $200 and this money will be used to help finance a class trip later in the school year, and toward the cost of caps and gowns.

The Pleasant Homemakers Extension Club had a carnival Wednesday night at the American Legion Hall in La Monte. There were novelty stunts, a country store, and a real carnival air prevailed in the good crowd attending. The club made approximately $100 during the evening.

Bert Zagers, Michigan State right halfback, is called the "penguin" by his teammates because he hails from the northern part of Michigan.

The Pittsburgh Pirates drew 297,000 less fans this year than last. Their total draw of 686,670 was the smallest since 1945.

Fish Supply Diminishing

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—H. J. Kimmerle, who has studied marine life for 40 years, believes he has the answer to the diminishing supply of fish along the Southern California coast.

He said there just isn't enough microscopic plant and animal life in the water to feed small fish, which, in turn, attract larger varieties.

Kimmerle explained that recent dry spells and construction of flood and animal matter from being swept into the ocean.

He believes organic matter could be spread over the fishing banks to increase commercial and sport fishing catches.

Would You Have a Prescription Filled in a Butcher Shop?
OF COURSE, NOT! And the same sound reasoning applies when you buy paint and wallpapers. Buy your materials from a specialist—a man whose ONLY BUSINESS is paint, wallpaper and associated items. These are like other commodities—you get exactly what you pay for! Don't consider price alone—think of quality, duarbility, the background of the dealer . . . and then you'll be safe.
See us for all your wallpaper and painting needs.

What They Say

Mayor J. F .McKeehan of the Town of LaMonte— The people of LaMonte are greatly appreciative of the efforts of all who combined last Thursday to fight a grass fire which threatened our homes, our businesses and our community all around.

The quick action of the hundreds of volunteers saved great loss and gave protection to homes when it seemed no protection could be offered. We are most grateful to the City of Warrensburg and to the Sedalia Air Force Base for the fire fighting equipment they sent and to the Airmen from the SAFB and the volunteers from Knob Noster and Sedalia, as well as our own residents, who bravely and successfully fought the blaze on the very edges of town.

School Carnival Gets Fund To Buy New Equipment

GREEN RIDGE — The school carnival held Friday and Saturday nights by the students of the Green Ridge schools, under the supervision of the faculty, was a success.

The net results of the activity was a sum of $513.09, which will be used toward playground equipment and an intercommunication system for the school buildings.

A talent show was the main attraction Friday night and Judy' Kay Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ray of Green Ridge, was awarded first in a song and dance number, "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun."

The high light of the program Saturday night was the coronation of Miss Marty Wimer as queen of the carnival. The queen and her escort and attendants marched slowly to the center of the auditorium to the tune of "Largo", played by Miss Jane Johnson.

The queen, attired in a white formal and escorted by Robert Calvert, led the procession, followed by Jeanette Vannoy in a white formal and escorted by Paul Ray Brownfield, Miss Elissa Paige, in a yellow formal and escorted by Donald Brown, Miss Allene Bruns, attired in a light blue formal and escorted by Lyman Kaiser., Rosilea Ruffin, in a rose formal, escorted by Fred Ziger, and little Harold Dean Ward, who carried the crown. They assembled in the center of the auditorium where Miss Wimer was crowned queen of the carnival by Donald Short.

Grass Fires Kept Under Control At Green Ridge

GREEN RIDGE — There have been a number of grass fires in Green Ridge accidently set from sparks from trash fires. Last Saturday, Fred Snapp was burning some trash at his home in the east part of Green Ridge and the fire got away from him and burned grass and weeds around his yard and the fire got across the alley over on the D. D. Davis property, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Ashley and children.

Besides burning grass and weeds on the Davis property, several trees caught fire and were burned so badly they will have to be cut down. Volunteer fire fighters brought the fire under control before it did any property damage.

Four Bands, 100 Horses And Riders In Parade Here

Over 100 horses and riders paraded to the music of four bands Saturday morning as vast throngs lined the sidewalks along the route of the parade through the Sedalia business district. The event, sponsored by the State Fair Saddle Club of Sedalia, was held to advertise the Fall Round-up to be staged by the club today in the coliseum at the fairgrounds.

Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors, on a beautiful steed, and the color bearer of the host club, led the parade behind a police car.

Following closely behind in the seven block-long entertainment were: the Smith-Cotton High School band, a float of the host club, the Sweet Springs Saddle Club riders, Odessa High School Band, Ionia Saddle Club members, Stover High School Band, riders of the Otterville Boots and Saddle Club, the Green Ridge High School band and, bringing up the rear, nearly 100 members of the State Fair Saddle Club.

All members of the various clubs were either riding their horses or were in surreys and wagons being drawn by teams of horses.

The event attracted a large crowd to the downtown area and all business was at a standstill for about one-half hour.

Knob Noster, Centerview Schools Are Burglarized

A total of $32.50 in cash and $15 in checks was stolen Thursday night in break-ins at the Knob Noster and Centerview schools.

Supt. A. C. Teague discovered the loss of $7.50 in cash from the Knob Noster School Friday morning and Supt. Ora Shaw found that $25 in cash and $15 in checks were missing from his office.

It was the second time in three weeks that the Knob Noster School had been robbed. On Oct. 13 between $75 and $100 was taken from Teague's office.

Entry at the Knob Noster School was made through a window in Teague's office, the same method employed at the last robbery. A window on the fire escape was pried open, and the $7.50 taken from a metal cash box locked in a metal cabinet, which was forced open.

Several other rooms in the Knob Noster building were ransacked, the door locks pried open and desk drawers searched.

The money in the Centerview School was taken from a money bag, which was in a drawer of Shaw's desk. The desk was not locked. A window in the auditorium was pried open to gain entrance into the Centerview School.

As far as could be ascertained, nothing but the money was taken from either of the schools, although typewriters and other valuable equipment were available.

Son Of Former Pettis Countians Seek Those Who May Be Relatives

A soldier at the Army Air Base, San Angelo, Tex., knows he has relatives in this area, but through the years has lost all trace of them. Now he would like to meet, through correspondence at least, some of his relatives.

The soldier is John J. Divine whose father was George Garland Divine and whose grandfather was Ebenezer Divine. Both are now deceased.

Earl Branstetter, 712 East 18th, met the boy recently while visiting in San Angelo. He will relay any word about local relatives to the soldier.

Reporter Sees Hallowe'en As It Really Is In Visits To Two Schools On Friday

A Democrat-Capital reporter visited two Sedalia Schools Friday during the Hallowe'en programs and this is his story of the awe-some occasion.

The horse stopped to have its tail adjusted, while a skeleton looked on with sad eye sockets. A package of Lucky Strikes waited patiently, glancing nervously now and then at the Indian playing with a sharp - bladed tomahawk. And when it seemed that time was dragging, spirits were lifted when an "old lady" walked in beside a horrible robot and helped him to a chair.

A reporter saw all this with his own eyes. Not only that, but he heard the click of high heels behind him and, turning, saw a gnarled and frowning witch bearing down on him. Naturally he stepped aside — out of politeness.

It was an unusual experience, but it could have happened to anyone who was smart enough to have fun by visiting the grade schools Friday afternoon during their Hallowe'en parties.

At one of the schools the children paraded across the stage and were judged for their costumes. The robot won first prize, but there was brief consternation when the principal tried to present him with the prize of two candy bars Robots don't have fingers, and the mouth slit was too small to jam two candy bars through it. Besides, there was actually only a rather small boy inside all that silver cardboard and aluminum foil.

The principal finally gave the candy bars to a little girl pumpkin, who loyally led the robot off the stage amid cheers from the audience.

If the approximately 50 mothers who attended had fun watching from the front, it was even better backstage. One young miss, dressed as a pink ballerina, was accosted by a red devil and told, "Go on Fluff out!"

Now walk all the way up to the front of the stage," the costumers were instructed by their teachers, and some of them did. But most of them preferred to go halfway, stop short, make a stiff bow, and beat a fast retreat for the wings. One cowboy got confused and bowed toward the side exit. A clown wearing a big mask that interfered with vision became lost among the scenery flats and aroused several hoots from the audience before he scrambled for cover.

Little Bo Peep aroused a different sort of hoot from the audience, some of the voices carrying definite male enthusiasm. Everyone applauded the space man. The noise was so deafening that he tried to cover his ears, but his space helmet prevented him from doing it.

The costumes were almost all original and showed the work put into them. One little girl mechanic was dressed in overalls that had a quilt patch in the middle of the seat. A scarecrow had outstretched arms draped with paper straw. A white rabbit munched on a huge carrot, and an oversize baby tried valiantly to down a large economy-sized bottle of milk. A mother in the audience held a real baby that kept ogling the Hallowe'en bottle.

The children buzzed excitedly before the parade began, comparing costumes and guessing each other's identity. Upstairs the children in the upper grades wore no costumes, and they stared straight at the print in their textbooks amid a grim silence. But as soon as the parade began, they were allowed to go down to the auditorium and be part of the audience.

The best costumes, as judged by the applause, were the robot, an Indian, a pumpkin, Little Lulu, a bull with sharp horns, and a worried - looking witch.

Out at another school, the children of all seven grades were treated to a series of six comedy movie shorts. There was "Brat Cat," "Chimp on the Farm," "Mouse of Tomorrow," "Hurry, Hurry," "Crow Crazy" and "Loose Nut." But first there had to be a parade of the costumes from room to room.

During the parade, the reporter saw a horrible old man daintily tuck long brown hair beneath his delapidated hat. A dog - faced boy had trouble seeing his way down the stairs, while a clown had trouble holding up his pants.

One fellow dressed as a lady angrily adjusted his bustle and complained, "That thing won't stay put!"

One class wore paper bag hats, which they had made during the week along with all the wall friezes and individual pictures they had drawn.

The pricipal had his troubles, too. Snarls in the spooky program were constantly brought to him. One little boy came running into his office and said, "Mr. T., can you staple my mask for me?" The mask was properly stapled.

After the parade was over, the children returned to their rooms for treats served by their homeroom mothers. There were cider and doughnuts and candy and cake, and anyone who felt like blowing a horn or whirling a noisemaker could go right ahead and do it.

Outside the school again, it seemed suddenly quiet. A happy murmur and a few faint horn toots squeezed through the windows, and the lawn was filled with bicycles matched in number by the automobiles parked at the curb. But it was like stepping through a doorway to a place where Hallowe'en didn't exist. Hallowe'en was back in the classroom, being munched and tooted and worn. It made a very contented noise.

Lutheran Church Council Monday At Cole Camp Church

An important Lutheran Conference of National Lutheran Council churches in this area will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Cole Camp on Monday evening, Nov. 3, at 7:30 p.m. This meeting is commemorate and brings to the members of the participating churches the story of the great Assembly of the Lutheran World Federation held in Hannover, Germany, July 25 to Aug. 3.

Speakers for the Cole Camp meeting will be the Rev. Donald Elder, secretary of he Indiana Synod of the United Lutheran Church, and Mrs. John R. Benson, president of the Women's Missionary society of the Augustana Lutheran Church.

The Lutheran World Federation is a world - wide fellowship of 48 million members of 51 Lutheran groups around the world. Two new groups were recently added to the membership, the Batak Protestant Christian Church of Indonesia, numbering 600,000 members, and the South Andhra Evangelical Lutheran Church of India, numbering some 12,000 members.

The Hannover assembly opened with a communion service in the newly rebuilt Market Church. The host bishop, Hans Lilje, called to the thousands of worshippers both inside and outside the church to a moment of silent prayer for those who were not able to be present. He obviously referred to some 5,000 churchmen from the East Zone of Germany who at the last moment were denied travel permits by Russian authorities despite earlier promises that they would be granted permission to visit Hannover. A very few church officials from the East Zone managed to attend the Hannover assembly since they had secured travel permits for an earlier meeting. No delegates appeared from the Lutheran Churches of Poland or Czechoslovakia

First hand reports from those who attended the assembly will be the feature of the meeting at Cole Camp.

The number of men who emigrated from the United States has been greater than the number of women each year since 1930, although the ratio of two to one in some years of the '30s has been reduced since that time.

GIVE YOUR KIDS A CHANCE TO GROW UP CLEAN —

Will they have that chance if they keep on seeing shady operators prosper and nobody doing anything about it?

There's nothing funny about mink coats or deep freezes or "fixers" or tax collectors accepting favors from gangsters.

Our kids are taught to honor truth and decency . . . shouldn't that teaching be set by example from the leaders of our great country?

How long should we condone wrongdoing in government by promoting those people to better jobs . . . instead of sending them to jail.

The Republican Party offers wise, forceful, experienced leadership—leadership above reproach—leadership of demonstrated character and ability to pilot our nation, state and county through these troubled times.

You . . . your neighbors . . . and decent people everywhere should forget party politics and HELP CLEAN HOUSE FROM TOP TO BOTTOM!

Louis Bromfield's Daughter Pens Story About Sedalians' Brother

Emery L. Guinn, brother of Mrs. Roy Jenkins, 1316 South Sneed and Dewey Guinn, 520 East Saline, was subject of a feature story in the column written by Eilen Bromfield Geld, daughter of Louis Bromfield, in the Mansfield, Ohio, News-Journal of Sunday, Oct. 19.

Of Mr. Guinn, a former Sedalian, she writes:

We used to meet Mr. Guinn often on our excursions to the berry patches on the Shennebarger place.

He always reminded me of Herbert Hoover in the rough with his broad rather stern looking face and shaggy red eyebrows. He would come across the fields sitting high on his turdy old fashioned tractor, looking for his cows who were generally spread all over the acres of wild pasture.

Behind him came his brown and white collie, a stately dog, broad and heavily furred with age.

Mr. Guinn loved to talk and we would always stop for a chat. Sometimes about the dogs, sometimes about rain and hail, often about Missouri where the huge dewberries make Ohio blackberries look like dried up raisins. He never came out to the fields without wearing his Indian sun helmet. "Most wonderful hat on earth," he'd say, "Keeps the sun off, and when it hails, I just crawl up inside until the stones stop falling."

He would reach down to pat the old dog and then look out across the valley. Although he was quite nearsighted when he looked ahead that way, you almost felt as though he could see far beyond the edge of the valley, maybe two or three horizons away and more.

On our way down the hill again, we would sometimes stop at his farm and rest.

The house lies back from the road near a small, clear, cool pond. Over the pond a row of willows stand 60 feet high, holding up their limbs and letting their pale, silvery leaves trail down to the water.

In front of the house is the customary Ohio cedar tree, its ancient crooked branches looking beautifully motheaten with needles and cones scattered every which way.

The bank leading down to the pond is covered with bushes of lilac and delicate rose of sharon. Behind all this the little house stands dignified and old fashioned. One of the most charming spots in the valley, an the sort of place that makes you wish with all your heart that you could paint everything you see.

On these visits we always sat and talked about the dogs. The collie who greeted us with the highpitched excited bark of an old man, and the frisky young black shepherd (another Jo dog) who leaped high in the air and nudged her way between you and her elderly rival.

"The old man belongs to the union," Mr. Glinn would say, "he'll only take the cows to the gate these days and lets the pup do the rest."

A gruff looking fellow, Mr. Guinn, I'll admit I was frightened of him when I was small, but he speaks so very kindly to his dogs.

Mrs. Guinn always came forth from the house sensibly dressed for a day's work ready to lean against the flank of a cow and get down to the business of milking. How pleasant were these visits and what fun, all the talking.

The talk seemed most earthly as if it had grown there with these people. Phrases of a country flavor, most constant and reassuring in sound, which belonged only in a certain valley. Most constant and reassuring in sound.

Their talent for hard work showed in their strong capable hands, and in the lines on their faces put there by years of wind and sun.

The pride in possesison of the land that was theirs came forth when Mr. Gwinn stood in the middle of the road angrily regarding a jeep full of silly farm boys about to cross his ground, pitchforks posed for battle, or Mrs. Guinn's able defense of her vegetable garden, one woman with a hoe again a mob of fat young steers straying through the fence from Ferguson and you know where.

The other day Mr. Guinn, with his usual self imposed gusto was sitting atop his barn alone, putting on new strips of roofing for the winter. The sickness began then, and soon after he had a stroke which paralyzed his side and put him in a most unfamiliar position in a hospital bed surrounded by strange looking bottles of medicine.

Nevertheless, Mr. Guinn is far from being a miserable stricken invalid.

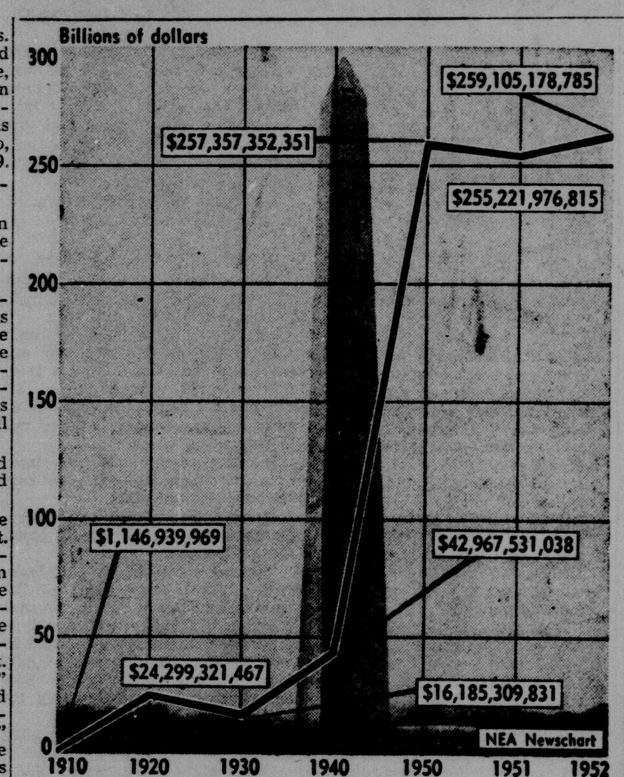
Stevie and I went calling last week with a couple of bottles of jam for our friend up the road. Not the usual visit with the dogs, and the wind forever making a noise in the bluegrass and the willows over the pond. Stevie soon became bored, after mixing the medicine bottles beyond recognition, and wanted to run in the grass with the dogs. But I was not bored. For from it. Mr. Guinn sat up in bed, completely unconquerable, his bulldog face above the sheets wreathed in smiles. He spoke of all his friends who came to chat each day and of a wonderful blind sister out in Missouri, who, although she had never passed the eighth grade in school had always managed a happy life for herself and her children, and who each week banged out letters on an old typewriter describing for others with unseeing eyes, the happiness of every day.

I saw what strong real faith can do for a person, how reassured one is of never being left alone. As I left, I was presented with the story of Ruth and Redemption to read and a bottle of most delicious tasting blackberry jelly. Berries picked in a practical way with rope tied around the waist and a silver jug. I was so pleased, but best of all, the old gentleman brought his hands from beneath the covers and carefully moved the once paralyzed fingers.

That is how I am sure that with Guinns' faith, and a lot of patience, the bed and medicine will in time give way to more of those happy times in the sun and wind beneath the scraggly cedar tree or out on the hills where scrawny Ohio blackberries grow.

And that was the story Ellen Bromfield Geld wrote about Emery Guinn, who was reared in Sedalia and was graduated from high school here in the class of 1910. He was here to attend the class reunion held in 1950, and had a grand time visiting with those he had gone to school with —some who had stayed in the old home town and others, like himself, who had gone to other places to make their homes, but whose memories are still of the place where they grew up.

It was on Labor Day that Mr. Guinn had the stroke and just two weeks ago his blind sister, who was Ferol Guinn, now Mrs. Roy Jenkins, with Mr. Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Guinn, visited him at his home in Lucas, Ohio, and that helped a lot—that is another bright spot that is going to elp him over the hard road back to health.



MONUMENTAL DEBT—Newschart above traces the ups and downs of the national debt from 1910 through the peak fiscal year of 1952. As the black line that scales the Washington Monument indicates, the trend has been mostly up since 1930. The only exception is the slight dip of about $2 billion in fiscal 1951.

Glazes Find Ozarks Even More Beautiful Than Blue Ridge Mts.

The Blue Ridge Mountains of the Southland may be interesting, but the Ozarks are by far the most beautiful, say Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Glaze, 620 West Fourth, who have just returned from a trip through the southern states.

They visited Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn., Warm Springs, Ga., and Pensacola, Fla., and also stopped over with friends at Monroe, La., and Hot Springs, Ark. They spent the weekend with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Glaze at Springfield.

Dr. and Mrs. Glaze report that the autumn colors in the Ozarks put that region far out in front of other scenic spots they visited.

U.S. senators are elected for six years. It is highly improbable that all Democrats or all Republicans up for election this year will be elected. But even if they were, the other party would still have a strong Senate representation. The chart shows what the situation would be in the improbable event that one party made a clean sweep. Odds and Ends By News Staff

At a recent meeting where Ellsworth Green was speaker he was telling about the effect his jokes had on his wife. Ada, like most wives, does not laugh the heartiest at her husband's jokes — in fact she doesn't laugh at all — she frowns.

At a meeting not too long ago she sat on the front row and every time Ellsworth told a joke she frowned.

When the principal speaker of the evening, which was not her husband, had finished, Ada rushed up, extended her hand and before her husband could introduce her she told him who she was.

The speaker smiled with relief and called to Mr. Green.

"When you got up to talk," he said, "Every time you told a joke a young woman in a checkered dress on the front row frowned — and I got the impression you weren't going over so good with her — then — when I told a couple of jokes she frowned and I figured I wasn't going over, too well either — I sorta worried about it— but now that I know who she is I understand — my wife always frowns, too." — H. A woman "king" was crowned at the Hallowe'en festival under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club. She was Mrs. J. C. Edwards. Traffic Death Toll Lower In September

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council said today the nation's September traffic death toll was five per cent lower than in September, 1951, but the change is not a "significant improvement."

The council said traffic deaths last month totalled 3,400 — but added that September this year had only four week ends compared with five last year.

Normal summer week ends account for more than 300 traffic deaths, the council said. The five per cent improvement in the September record represents a reduction of 180 deaths, which the council believes would have been more than offset by an additional September week end.

In the first nine months of this year, traffic accidents claimed 27,220 lives, compared with a death toll of 2,590 in the same period last year.

The three leading cities in the 100,000—200,000 population group for the first nine months of 1952, ranked according to the number of deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles, were:

Little Rock, Ark., none; Des Moines, Ia., .6; Trenton, N. J., .7.

Seasonal Promotions Boost Retail Sales

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Seasonal promotions continued to prove effective and department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve district last week were nine per cent above those of a year ago.

The increase over the comparable week of 1951 averaged 32 per cent in seven of the district's smaller cities.

Gains elsewhere were six per cent in the St. Louis area, 10 per cent in Louisville, Ky., and Memphis, Tenn., and 12 per cent at Little Rock, Ark.

District sales for the four weeks ending Saturday were 12 per cent over those for the comparable 1951 period. For the year to date, the department store sales are running three per cent higher than in 1951.

GOP Senate Control Depends On Two New Senate Seats

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952. By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — One thing worrying the GOP high command is that while capturing the White House they might lose the Senate. This is because only one-third of the Senate is up for election, and it happens that this year Republican Senators are chiefly affected, many in marginal states.

To win control of the Senate, the Republicans must pick up two new seats. Instead they are likely to lose six states, and pick up three — a net loss of three Senators.

Here is the box-score on the key races for the Senate:

NEW YORK — Sen. Irving Ives, Republican, frequent bolter to the GOP — Democratic liberals, will be re-elected.

CONNECTICUT — With two Democratic seats at stake in Connecticut, the Republicans are likely to pick up at least one. Chief issue in Connecticut is "McCarthyism," only Senator with the courage to ask for a Senate probe of McCarthy's unethical conduct. As a result, McCarthy and friends have thrown everything except the kitchen sink into Connecticut to defeat Benton.

MARYLAND — Congressman Glenn Beall, Republican, is likely to defeat Democrat George Mahoney.

MICHIGAN — Sen. Blair Moody, Democrat, is fighting an uphill race against Congressman Charles Potter, a legless veteran. Potter voted against everything Eisenhower was working for — defense funds, mutual security aid to Europe; while Moody championed the principles of the late Senator Vandenberg. Nevertheless, sympathy for a legless veteran, plus the powerful support of both Ford and General Motors, is likely to defeat him.

WASHINGTON — Congressman "Scoop" Jackson, Democrat, is a probable winner over Senator Cain, the Republican who played footsie with the real-estate lobby and the isolationist bloc.

MONTANA — Congressman Mike Mansfield is the favorite to defeat another isolationist Republican who was swept in with the 1946 landslide — Zales Ecton.

INDIANA — Sen. William Jenner, one of the most controversial Seators in the campaign due to his attacks on General Marshall and Ike's subsequent endorsement, seems certain to lose to popular, middle-of-the-road Gov. Henry Schricker.

MISSOURI—Another GOP Senator of the class of 1946, James Kem, is due to be mowed down by Stuart Symington, who cleaned up the RFC.

NEVADA — Tom Mechling, the young newsman who defeated Senator McCarran's law partner in the Democratic primary, now faces the open and bitter opposition of the most powerful man in Nevada — McCarran himself. This means that the Democratic machine is not actively behind him. However, such sympathy has been aroused for Mechling's lone battle that he may defeat GOP Senator Malone. Nevadans know that Malone, whom McCarran now backs, previously was treated by him like dirt.

MASSACHUSETTS — Young Congressman John Kennedy, Democrat with a liberal voting record, is considered likely to defeat Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, despite the powerful support given Lodge by Eisenhower.

NEW MEXICO — Sen. Dennis Chavez, Democrat, has an understanding with Republican leaders whereby the state will probably go for Eisenhower, but simultaneously defeat the ebullient Pat Hurley, now running against Chavez for the Senate.

WYOMING — Joe O'Mahoney, Democrat, a skilled and respected Senate veteran, is in the tough fight with GOP Governor Barrett. The race is close, but O'Mahoney is expected to squeak through.

UTAH — Sen. Arthur Watkins, Republican, is in a seesaw battle with Congressman Walter Granger, Democrat. Watkins has become so desperate that he has imported a professional ex-communist, Harvey Matusow, to attack Granger. Granger, however, has been a solid, hard - working Congressman and the attack may boomerang.

OHIO — Sen. John Bricker, voted No. 96 by Washington newsmen in contrast to Taft's rating of No. 1, is being pushed by Mike Di Salle, the former price administrator. Hurting Bricker is the fact that rents are being raised all over Ohio, following his consistent voting with the real-estate lobby to remove rent controls. Bricker has also admitted receiving $69,000 from his law firm, while the firm in turn received $138,000 from the Pennsylvania Railroad. Bricker consistently voted against the St. Lawrence Seaway, though Ohio is a Great Lakes State.

KENTUCKY — The Republicans may pick up one seat in the close race between Ex-Sen. John S. Cooper, Republican, and Democratic Senator Tom Underwood. Cooper is a Vandenberg Republican with a fine record.

WEST VIRGINIA — Ex-Sen. Chappie Revercomb, the Republican whom Governor Dewey snubbed in 1948 because of his votes against minority groups, isn't given much chance to win against Democratic Sen. Harley Kilgore.

DELAWARE — A close race is developing between Sen. John Williams, Republican, and Lt. Gov. Alexis I. Du Pont Bayard. Though the Du Ponts usually back a Republican, in this case they are either keeping neutral or giving some quiet support to their Democratic cousin.

NEW JERSEY — Sen. Alexander Smith, Republican, will probably win out over efficient Undersecretary of the Army Archibald Alexander, Democrat.

Should the above calculations be wrong, however, and should the Republicans win three new seats instead of dropping a net of three, they still have to worry about Senators Wayne Morse of Oregon, who recently bolted, and Bill Langer of North Dakota, who rode on Truman's train. Their two votes might be necessary in order to organize the Senate.

OUT OUR WAY — By J. R. Williams

'Twas Ever Thus

Basic Home Maintenance List Given for Sedalia's 'Mr. Fix'

There are a few basic maintenance duties for owners of both new and old homes in Sedalia. They are mostly of the seasonal persuasion.

Here is an annual check list of things to be done to and for your house:

In the winter repair and paint lawn furniture and screens. Sharpen lawn mower and other yard tools so they'll be in readiness for spring and summer. Then sit by a fire and relax — when you aren't shoveling snow, that is.

In the spring clean gutters and downspouts. Seed and feed the lawn. Examine exterior paint for condensation and other damage. Take down storm doors and windows and install screens for summer.

In the summer check and repair the heating system. Do the necessary interior painting and decorating.

In the fall reseed the lawn if necessary. Take down screens and store them vertically in a dry location. Install storm windows and doors. Plant bulbs for spring blossoms. Rake leaves and save them for compost. Cover perennials for winter protection.

You will need some fundamental tools and supplies for everyday use in keeping your home in tip-top shape.

The National Association of Home Builders recommends that a good kit contain utility wrench, size 16; cards of assorted faucet washers; pair of standard hand pliers; medium-sized screwdriver; claw hammer; good keyhole saw; box of assorted wire nails and brads; sturdy penknife and a roll of friction tape.

You should also have a box of assorted fuses. Note the type and number of fuses now in use in your home and buy the same replacement types. Never use a fuse larger than 30 amps.

A newly planted lawn and recently transplanted shrubs must be watered. Immediate and constant care of any newly transplanted shrubbery is necessary to its successful growth.

Termites are found in many parts of the country and it is easier to bar termites from new homes than it is to rid an old house of them.

In the spring of the year, look for possible dead remnants of the winged insect, search the side of basement walls and piers for the earthen tubes which termites build as tunnels, and, finally, stick a penknife blade into the wood to see if it penetrates easily. If you suspect the presence of termites, consult a professional exterminator.

If your house has a septic tank for disposal of sewage, have your builder point out the location of the tank and the drainage field.

All septic tank installations are required to meet the standards of the local health official, hence they require little if any maintenance.

Every three to five years the sludge should be removed from the tank and the tank cleaned. Patented septic tank cleaning agents are not generally recommended to be added to the sewage, according to the Home Builders Association.

New home owners must meet and deal with both seasonal and emergency maintenance tasks and should be equipped for them.

BIG THREE MEETING—"Junior," year-old giraffe born in Columbus, Ohio, meets older giraffes "Sis" and "Babe" in new home at Chicago's Brookfield Zoo. With them is keeper Morris Ryzenga. "Junior" is of reticulated species from Africa.

Murder she yelled

THE STORY: Al Kemmer unwisely moved the body of a murdered racketeer which was found by Midge Burnett, a guest at High Hill, which Al runs. Now Al has received a note demanding payment of $6500 for silence on Al's move to protect the reputation of his place. Al and Dan Morrison, the athletic director, talk it over and Al decides to pay $2500 and say he can't raise the rest.

• • •

XII

I MET Al in the office at 8:45 p. m. He shakily ripped open a pack of spearmint and threw me a stick. He was chewing two at a time this evening. On the desk was a brown grocery bag, packed full and standing upright. Through the open window came the jumpy music of the record-player. It was a big night—the Friday dance—the only time in the week when we had neckties and evening gowns.

I read the note Al had written:

This is all I can raise, positively. Any more would bankrupt me, and then I wouldn't care who you talked to. So it don't pay you to be a hog. Be satisfied.

He stuffed the bag under his arm. "Okay, let's go out and be somebody's sucker."

"Taking the office gun?" I said.

"No gun," he grunted. "I don't want to shoot anybody, and I don't think anybody'll want to shoot me."

Our shoes made a slight rattle on the cinders, like sounds being made far-off. Al chewed with tight jaws. "I hope they're all at the dance," he muttered. "I don't feel like running into anybody."

The little hall lights shone faintly. The cottages looked deserted, never-lived-in, but I knew there were girls in some of the rooms. There were always some who missed a dance—girls who'd made a conquest during the first few days of their stay, only to have the guy snatched away by some seductive new arrival—and now, shunning the public humiliation of the dance, they stayed in their rooms and wrote home what a wonderful time they were having.

The cinders ended—we were walking on soft dirt. The air was rich with cool piny smells. Al held up his luminous watch. "Only seven more minutes," he said unsteadily. "Let's hurry up."

"Yeh—you get there late, they'll make you take it back."

I stopped. I caught his arm. I listened. Soft footfalls.

• • •

THEY stopped immediately. I looked back, squinting, blinded by motes of darkness. I thought I saw a dim figure—

I gave Al a push. "Keep going."

I slipped off the road to my right and crouched behind a tree. Al's footsteps clomped away. In a moment I heard the crumple of earth again. I tensed. I tested my footing.

A man came. Middle-sized. Trim. Springy. No hat. Light suit and open-throat shirt.

It was Sgt. Franklin Healey, Pennsylvania State Police. Dressed for a night out.

"Taking a walk?" he said pleasantly. "Swell—nice night for it." He walked quickly ahead. "Is that your friend Kemmer up there?"

Al was floundering about 10 yards away. "Good evening, Kemmer," Healey said. "Looks like everybody's out promenading tonight."

"Yes," Al mumbled, "it's a—it's a—"

"Nice night for a walk, like I was telling Morrison. Say—I see you've brought your lunch along."

Al hunched the bag into his armpit. "Yeh—my lunch—I gotta eat all the time, account of my colitis."

Healey smiled sympathetically, and reached under Al's arm and took the bag. He popped a pencil flashlight inside. "Look at that. Now, what do you want to carry all this money around for?" he chided.

Abruptly Al said, "The safe. The door won't lock good. When I go out for a walk, I take half of the money with me, so in case there's a robbery or anything, half of the money will be saved, anyway."

"That's using the old bean," Healey said. "Now suppose we take a walk back to your place and have a little talk."

As soon as we were inside the office, Healey closed the door, turned at Al and said, "We know that body was on your land."

Al laid his lower jaw on his chest. He groped behind him for his chair and unrolled himself into it. "What body?"

"Let's cut the kidding," Healey said. "Once we got on to the fact the body had been dragged it was easy to find where from."

Al was rapidly stuffing gum between his teeth. "Owh shzhoh nuvvin about it," he spluttered through the wad. "Supposing it was on my land--does that prove I moved it?"

"Not by itself. But there were a couple of strange coincidences. Somebody used the phone to tip us to it being on Stacey's land; somebody with a fake accent. Then you called Stacey."

"Somebody's trying to get me in trouble. That animal Stacey. He wants to push all his troubles on me." Al's voice got shriller as he began to believe his own spiel. "I ain't going to stand for that kind of monkey business. I'll get a lawyer to take care of him."

• • •

HEALEY let him run down. "And who were you paying off with this dough?"

Al cleared his throat. "I told you—"

"The safe wouldn't lock. I know." Healey moved lithely across the room to the safe. He pulled at the handle—

The door swung open.

"You outfoxed me that time," Healey said.

"No foxing about it," Al said daintily. "When I tell you something, it's good as gold."

Healey seemed abstracted now. "Kemmer, till we clear this thing up, I want you to stick around. Don't leave your grounds."

Healey went out. Al followed him to the front doorway and watched him walk away past the rec hall. Then Al came back, smiling. "Nice guy, for a cop."

If you were lucky enough to be living in 1910 your share of the national debt was only a paltry $12 41. As Newschart above shows, your share of the burden has grown through the years until today you shoulder a $1649.93 load. If it's any consolation, that's $3.44 less than you owed last year, and $46 68 less than the peak year of 1950.

Some Top-Level Capital Officials Nursing Hopes of Staying On The Job

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — If Candidate Eisenhower is elected, there'll be, of course, a pretty thorough shake-up of top White House personnel. But if Candidate Stevenson wins, even though he has promised to "throw 'em out," most of President Truman's high - level officials seem to be nursing hopes of sticking around for another four years.

Either that, or with their days in high office numbered, they are just reluctant to face up to the necessity of job hunting after January 20, 1953.

A survey of members of the President's Cabinet reveals that only two of them will state with certainty that they are calling it quits with the government when the President leaves. They are Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett and Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson flatly refuses to discuss the subject. A spokesman for Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder indicates that he will quit with his pal Harry Truman.

However, the remaining five, either by personal statement or through authorized spokesmen are being very coy about committing themselves one way or another. The hinting is that they'd like to stay. And the same goes for most of the other officials of less than cabinet rank.

Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, the one man who stands the best chance of being kept on in case of a Stevenson victory, is the most forthright about his position. He states simply:

"If I said that I would accept the job again I'd just be accused of openly campaigning for it."

Spokesmen point out unique claims which two members have for being continued in office. Both Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan and Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson have so - called Civil Service status, which is a kind of legal right to some Federal employment which they won by coming up through the ranks as career men. A Brannan aide says:

"Becoming a Secretary of a department is the climax for a career government employe. The Secretary enjoys his work very much and it is logical to assume that he would be willing to continue to serve if asked."

The job of Postmaster General used to be the traditional spot for the most active politician in the Cabinet. President Truman changed that by appointing Donaldson who worked up in the Post Office over 45 years. As a result, now, other postal officials claim that it would be an injustice if the next President replaced him or forced him to retire.

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin and new Attorney General James P. McGranery are both being very adroit about not saying yes or no about their willingness to continue in office if asked.

Tobin's associates point out that the Secretary and Stevenson see eye-to-eye on labor problems. And they say that there is great need for continuity in the present program.

The case advanced for keeping McCranery is the ambitious clean-up which he has started and the fact that it will take at least 18 months to finish.

Among the high non - cabinet government officials, only Jess Larson, head of General Services Administration, has revealed any strong intention to leave Uncle Sams' payroll in January. He has said to friends several times that he wants to get out of the government.

A spokesman for the head of the Federal Security Agency indicates that the boss there, Oscar Ewing, might like to stay in the job. And officials at Veterans Administration claim that tradition would call for keeping Carl Gray in his post.

There's a more realistic attitude among members of the White House staff. Such key Truman men as John Steelman, Charles S. Murphy and Matt Connelly aren't committing themselves as to their future, either. But nobody is willing to claim that they should be kept around for the next regime.

The only thing that they do all agree on, however, is the fact that tradition calls for all presidential appointees to at least hand in a resignation to the new President.

If the falling ax does catch the necks of the entire Cabinet, the legal profession will be most affected. Tobin is a businessman, Lovett a banker and Donaldson a Federal employe. The rest are lawyers.

Hollywood Boulevard Of Dreams

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (AP) — Hollywood Boulevard, to movie-struck kids, is a street of dreams.

It's where Ellen Drew was discovered for movies while mixing sodas in a sweet shop. . .

Where Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Dennis O'Keefe, Charles Farrell, Richard Arlen and other extras of their day used to stroll. . .

Where silent - day stars like Mabel Norman, Bert Lytell, Wally Reid, Gloria Swanson, Wallace Beery, Buster Keaton, Fatty Arbuckle, and Charlie Chaplin promenaded of an evening. . .

Where "Peter the Hermit" hiked, barefooted, his long white hair and beard tossing in the breeze. . .And all manner of exhibitionists and publicity-seekers paraded in hopes of crashing the movies to fame and easy fortune.

But those were the good old days of the boulevard's wild and flamboyant youth.

You can stand in the stars' cement footsteps now, in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theatre—but you rarely see them along the street.

You can lunch or dine near stars in busy restaurants like the Brown Derby and Musso-Franks. But to dance with them, you must go over to Sunset Boulevard. Spots like Mocambo and Ciro's

A publicity executive here says: "I haven't had a tourist out here yet who wasn't tremendously disappointed in Hollywood Boulevard."

Gone, in a time of more conservative practicality, are sights that made the boulevard wacky and unique—

Keystone Kops skidding their cars down the Vine Street hill on asphalt smeared with axle grease and soap. . .

Magnificent wedding scenes, with rice and crowds of extras, being filmed in a church that stood at Hollywood and Vine. . .

Fire trucks and camera cars weaving between trolleys and autos for chase scenes that left silent-movie fans breathless. . .

The zoo in front of master showman Sid Grauman's Egyptian Theater, with a Foreign Legionnaire marching sentry duty on the roof.

Except for star-sprinkled spasms of flory like premieres and the annual Academy Awards and Santa Claus parades, Hollywood Boulevard today is pretty much like Main Street anywhere.

There are dress, pottery, shoe, book, pipe, drug, hosiery, jewelry, TV, dime, hat, candy, health-food, and record stores . . . and banks, cafes, bar-b-q stands, do-nut shops, juice counters, and movie houses.

But one of the world's most famous intersections — Hollywood Boulevard and Vine Street — is strictly average in makeup. A department store, a drugstore, a luggage shop, and a restaurant occupy its four corners.

Radio gagsters claim this is the corner where sleek wolves whistle at passing slick chicks. But Louie Blacker, who has been selling newspapers on the corner 17 years, says what he hears most often is tourists asking how to get to Grauman's Chinese Theater.

This green and orange structure, a mile west on the boulevard, rises like a gaudy temple with sharp-pointed spires. Sid Grauman, who got his start selling newspapers at $1 a copy in the Klondike gold rush, opened the 2,000-seat theatre in 1927.

One evening when it was nearing completion, the legend goes, Sid drove up with Norma Talmadge, Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Mary Pickford. They walked across the sidewalk cement, not knowing it was still soft. The prints are still visible.

That supposedly gave Sid the idea for such eventual imprints as Betty Grable's leg, Monty Wooley's beard and Jimmy Durante's schnozzle.

Hollywood's oldest landmark is the Hollywood Hotel, on the boulevard at Highland Avenue. Part was built in 1906, the rest 10 years later. Los Angeles families used to drive their buggies through stubble fields and citrus groves to spend week ends here.

Now in decaying splendor, the stucco Spanish structure is occupied mostly by retired Midwesterners and widows who like to sit on its porch and rock.

In its heyday, Hollywood hotel was a gathering place for the screen elite. The Thursday night dances attracted luminaries like Bert Lytell, Viola Dana, Wally Reid and Gloria Swanson.

Other landmarks of the boulevard area include the Brown Derby, a few doors south on Vine Street. Opened in 1929, it is noted for about 1,000 framed caricatures on the walls.

A pair of writers from Europe, named Musso and Frank, opened a boulevard restaurant in 1918. Like the Derby and other more recently established cafes, its clientele includes a percentage of stars.

Nowadays the boulevard's prettiest season is from Thanksgiving to Christmas. A hundred steel-and-aluminum Christmas trees, each bearing 186 colored light bulbs, are brought out of storage on a vacant lot in Burbank.

They are given fresh paint and installed along the boulevard between four-foot aluminum bells and stars a-dazzle with candlepower. Every night Santa Claus rides down the boulevard on a big float, accompanied by some movie or radio star, calling greetings over a loudspeaker.

Margaret Ettinger, one of the town's top independent publicists, has had an office on or just off the boulevard.

So he says: "Hollywood Boulevard used to have a great deal more character than it has now. Now it's just a street."

LANZA SINGS AGAIN—The new Mario Lanza musical, "Because You're Mine," opens today at the Fox Theatre. Filmed in Technicolor, the new picture abounds in songs, fun and romance. Featured is Doretta Morrow, a singer who gained renown as one of the star of Broadway's "The King And I." James Whitmore, Paula Corday and Spring Byington are in supporting roles. A wide range of musical numbers include the title song, "You Do Something To Me," "All The Things You Are," "Granada," "The Song The Angels Sing" and many others.

Girl, 7, Takes Driving Lesson

DENVER (AP) — When a startled policeman saw an apparently driverless car go through a stop sign, he took off in pursuit and forced it to the curb.

To his surprise he found a 7-year-old girl at the wheel and a 55-year-old man beside her. The man, a partly paralyzed veteran of World War I, said he was within reach of the driving controls and could have stopped the car at any time. The car was fitted with special driving controls to enable him to drive.

The young girl said she was getting her third driving lesson from the veteran who said he was a friend of her family. Police asked her not to take any more driving lessons until she was old enough.

Mt. Fuji May Erupt

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's cone-shaped Mt. Fuji volcano, dormant for almost eight and a half centuries, probably will erupt in four or five years, says a Japanese geologist.

Professor Teruhiko Samejima of Shizuoka University based his forecast on a study of more than 90 major eruptions in Japanese islands over the past 1,300 years.

A spokesman of the government's Central Meteorological Observatory called Samejima's theory "interesting" without giving it full support. Fuji, south of Tokyo, is regarded by many Japanese as sacred. Thousands of pilgrims climb it every year.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

A vote for names of candidates for president and vice-president is a vote for the electors of that party, the names of whom are on file with the secretary of state.

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such cancelled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle. Where there are two of more candidates for like office in a group a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name, automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal line in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark unless the voter indicates another candidate, to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidates name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns if two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name "except as provided in this section", figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to the ballot clerk the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any marks shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots, who shall number the ballot and deposit it in the ballot box. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed space as soon as possible.

Ninth Generation of Bennetts, Joan's Daughter, Into Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 (AP)—Melinda Markey, ninth-generation member of the acting Bennett clan, was getting her first break in the movies this week.

Melinda is the pretty, brown-haired daughter of glamor grandmother Joan Bennett and granddaughter of the stormy Richard Bennett. The 18-year-old gal is heiress to an acting tradition that goes back a couple of centuries, and she gives all indications that she will help keep that tradition alive.

Despite being around show business all her life, she maintains a zest for the show biz life. She was excited about her role in "Nearer My God to Thee," in which she plays one of a group of coeds returning from Europe on the Titanic.

"It's really not much of a part, but at least it lasts throughout the picture," she explained. "It's a good role to break into the movies with. I've only been in films once before: that was a very brief part in a picture produced by my stepfather (Walter Wanger)."

Melinda hasn't pushed her career. She made her debut two years ago when she played in summer stock with her mother in "Susan and God." Since then she has served a vigorous apprenticeship in the theater and television.

"I did about 30 TV shows in New York," she commented. "It was good experience, but live TV is a rough deal. There isn't time enough to do things right, and many of the producers and directors don't know what they're doing....

"My ambition is to land a contract at 20th Century-Fox," she added boldly. "My mother started here when she was quite young and has been coming back through the years. It's fun for me to be here, because I know so many of the studio workers."

What about the rest of her sisters following acting careers? Melinda remarked that her older sister, Diana, 24, is now Mrs. John Anderson and the mother of two. Stephanie hasn't shown any great desire to act, Melinda added.

"But Shelley, who is 4, knows what she wants to be," she remarked. "She says she's going to be a toe-dancer."

1732. WAKEFIELD. Birthplace of GEORGE WASHINGTON

At Wakefield, Va., stood the home of Augustine Washington and his second wife, Mary Bell Washington; and here, on February 22, 1732, Mary presented her husband with a boy, later named George Washington and, later still, to become the first President of the United States of America and "The Father of His Country." The old house was the center of a thousand-acre plantation, with its woodland and rich bottom lands, stretching along the Virginia shore of the Potomac for a mile and bounded on one side by Popes' Creek and, on the other, by Brides' Creek. The plantation was originally known as Popes' or Bridges' Creek but was later called "Wakefield." Fire destroyed the old house in 1779, but it has since been faithfully restored by the Wakefield Memorial Association and is now a national shrine.

The ★ ★ Real Issues...

★ BECAUSE of the injection of so many secondary and minor issues in recent weeks, the real issues of Tuesday's presidential election may have become confused in the minds of many.

Aren't these the real issues you want to consider in selecting the man who will guide American destiny during the next four years?

1 Who is best qualified to guide our international relations? For whom would the nations of the world have the greatest respect?

2 Who will best bring about economy in government expenditures and reduction of taxes?

3 Who can best give us real prosperity—without the pump-priming of war and excessive government spending?

4 Who is best qualified to deal with internal Communism?

5 Who will give us the cleanest, corruption-free government?

6 Who is best qualified to bring the Korean War to an early and successful conclusion?

7 Who will make the best executive . . . would bring to our nation's top executive position the greatest dignity, honesty and integrity, and surround himself with the most competent leaders?

★ ★ ★

Every American should think these questions over very carefully . . . and then vote as his or her conscience dictates.

We can have a government "of the people and by the people" only if everyone votes.

Your vote may determine America's destiny.

SS Includes Domestics In Households

(This is one of a series of articles on old-age and survivors insurance under the Social Security Act. These articles were prepared by your social security office at 511 South Ohio, Sedalia, Mo.)

The protection of the Social Security Act has been extended, since January 1, 1951, to what are called "regularly employed domestics." This means that only those persons who are fairly steadily employed by the same householder are covered by the Act.

Generally speaking, we can say that a domestic is covered if he or she works for one employer at least 24 days in a calandar quarter. For a domestic worker to be covered for work that she does in a private household, she must work for any one household at least some part of each of 24 days in a calendar quarter. Calendar quarters are 3-month periods starting January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1.

Besides working for the employer on at least 24 days in a calendar quarter, the domestic must be paid at least $50 in cash wages by the same employer. Only cash wages are counted; the value of meals, room, or clothing, cannot be added to the cash wages so that the employee may be covered; nor should they be reported by the mployer.

If a domestic works for an employer 24 days in one calendar quarter, her work will be covered in the next quarter even if she works less than 24 days, if she is paid at least $50 in cash wages.

All domestic who work in a private home may be covered; a cook, a maid, a chauffeur, a gardener, or a valet. Domestic work done on a farm operated for profit is covered, but only if it meets the provisions of the law covering regular farm workers. (These will be described in a later article.) Domestic employment in a hotel, or boarding house is usually covered no matter how much is paid in wages, nor how many days the employee works.

Domestic employees will need social security numbers, the same as other persons covered by the act. Numbers can be obtained at your social security office at 511 South Ohio, Sedalia, Mo.

Court Plan Needs Support From Voters

There is danger, particularly so when the interest of the voters is centered in a great presidntial lection, that indifference may result in many voters not casting their judicial ballot on the retention of the judges to be voted thereon under the Missouri nonpartisan court plan. At the last general presidential election only a little more than half of the voters cast their judicial ballot.

Under the non-partisan court law the judges are prohibited by law from campaigning in their own behalf.

The Missouri Bar Association has appointed members of the judicial election committee of the Missouri Bar, whose purpose is to support and urge the election of the judges of the Missouri Supreme Court and Courts of Appeals who received the approval of members of the Missouri Bar.

The members of this committee for Pettis County are John T. Martin, Frank W. Hayes, Don S. Lamm and Fred Wesner.

They direct the attention of the voters to the separate judicial ballot and urge that they cast their judicial ballot at the election on Nov. 4.

The voters of Pettis County will vote on the names of Ernest M. Tipton, C. A. Leedy, S. P. Dalton and Frank Hollingsworth for retention in office as judges of the Supreme Court of Missouri. They should cast their vote on each of the four names, as four are up for retention in office. Each of the four men are able jurists and, under secret ballot, the lawyers of Missouri have endorsed each and all of these men for retention in offic by a very great majority. In conformity with the vote of the Missouri lawyers, the members of the committee for Pettis County, as well as the lawyers of this county and state "urge that you vote to retain these men in office by voting 'Yes' and scratching 'No' on the judicial ballot on Nov. 4."

SCHWABE ALMOST NATIVE SON OF PETTIS COUNTY

Father Practiced Medicine in Smithton 25 Years; Candidate Started School Here in Sedalia.

Max Schwabe, candidate for Congress, has strong ties and a sincere affection for Pettis County. His father was a country doctor, practicing for more than 25 years in the Smithton community. His mother was a teacher in the Pettis County schools. His grandfather was born in Pettis County. It was this maternal grandparent who hauled lumber to build the first house that was constructed in Sedalia.

Max Schwabe himself started school in Sedalia. It is in Sedalia and Smithton cemeteries that many of his relatives are buried. His great-grandfather was one of the early settlers in Pettis County.

Many are the tales he has heard his father tell of the early days of practicing mediicne when he had to drive two horses hitched to a buggy to answer calls in all sections of his territory. When the weather was bad, he would have to go horseback, carrying his medical supplies and instruments in saddle bags.

When this county was added to Mr. Schwabe's district in the congressional redistricting last year, it was almost like Mr. Schwabe coming home. He has thoroughly enjoyed campaigning in this county, meeting and talking to the people who knew his people, renewing old acquaintances and making others.

INDIGNANT OVER WAR

Mr. Schwabe, during this campaign has canvassed each of the 17 counties in this district by caravan and speaking tours.

Mr. Schwabe reports that he has found the people of this district thoroughly disgusted with the leadership that blundered us into a war that is costing this country of ours more than 100 casualties a day in Korea. He reports that the people are greatly agitated over the tremendous cost of government and the fact that they must work almost 1/3 of their time to pay direct and hidden taxes to support the more than 1200 boards and bureaus that have dictatorial control over our lives and businesses.

"If I am elected to Congress," Mr. Schwabe declared, "I will do everything in my power to aid General Dwight Eisenhower in bringing about an honorable cessation of the war in Korea. This so-called inflationary prosperity that we are having is not the kind of prosperity this country wants.

NO "RUBBER STAMP"

"The Truman-Stevenson party has repealedly stated that it can see no immediate end to the killing and maiming of our boys in Korea. And still the leaders of this party tell us that we never had it better. They have yet to demonstrate that they can give us good times without war.

"I believe that with the election of General Eisenhower and a Republican Congress to back him, that we can bring this war to a quick and honorable conclusion, stop the slaughtering of our boys and the dissipation of our treasure and bring this country into a period of peace with prosperity.

Mr. Schwabe asserted that while he would work wtih General Eisenhower in every way possible, he would not be a "rubber stamp congressman" and said he was sure Mr. Eisenhower would not want such congressmen.

STRONG FOR REA

"I want to represent this district and vote for the good of the people in this district, for a cut in governmental spending which in turn will mean a reduction in taxes and an end to intlation," he explained.

Pointing out that when he was a member of Congress he had voted for appropriations for rural electrification and other such progressive and necessary measures, Mr. Schwabe said that he would continue to support legislation of this type, which means so much to the people of the central Missouri district. He also said he would do everything in his power to see that the purchasing value of the dollar was returned to somewhere near its face value so that those who are on pensions and receive other assistance through need can get 100 cents worth of good out of each one.

Mr. Schwabe wrote an enviable record when he was in Congress. He was present for more than 93% of the roll calls in the 80th Congress, voted for a huge appropriation for REA, voted for a tax reduction which removed more than seven million small taxpayers from the tax rolls, voted to balance the budget and for other pieces of progressive legislation that meant so much to the people of central Missouri. He was always present when a piece of legislation affecting his district was up for consideration. That is the kind of representation the people of this district should demand from their congressman.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PETTIS COUNTY

For the past several years it has been my privilege and pleasure to represent you as county court judge of the Western District of Pettis County. During my term as associate judge of the county court, I have continuously striven to improve the roads not only in the Western District but throughout Pettis County.

The road program in Pettis County has developed during these years to where this county rates next to Jackson and St. Louis counties in good roads. Good roads do not come by accident or political promises. They are built by wisely spending your road tax money and by appropriating as much surplus county funds for road purposes as possible. This, the county court has done during the past several years and I pledge to you that this program will be continued as far as possible.

During the years of my administration as a member of the Pettis County Court you have seen the county court develop the county home into one of the finest institutions of any county in the state of Missouri. It is now known as the Buena Vista Home, and is operated by a board of eleven good and outstanding citizens of Pettis County. This Buena Vista Home is providing a wonderful home for the aged and for the needy of this county. This home is now being enlarged to accommodate more people.

During my administration the affairs of the county have been maintained in excellent condition. The Court House building has been maintained in a good state of repair and improvements have been made where needed.

At the conclusion of a recent audit by the State Examiners, they reported: "We want to congratulate the county officials and members of the county court for one of the finest bookkeeping and budgeting jobs in the State of Missouri."

If re-elected, I will continue to work for better roads, for the continuation of the Buena Vista Home as a service institution, for the good of all Pettis Countians, and will always serve you in every way to the very best of my ability as I have in the past.

Don't Be Misled! A Simple Majority Is All That Is Needed! "Write-In" Dan Drew For Representative!

Do You Want Capable Representation?

Then "Write-In" DAN DREW!

Are we not being betrayed by our Party Leaders? They give us a 500 pound dog catcher to vote for, one too fat to get out of the truck and a chase a dog, and then call us deserters for scratching our ticket or causing the defeat of their candidate by writing in a capable man. They don't consider us intelligent citizens. To them we are just voters, sheep.

Where are the capable men in this county that won't run for this office? Men who can't be bothered for the peanuts it pays? Do you hear from them? Do they tell you how they are going to vote? No, they try to tell you and me how to vote. They try to make a case for THEIR candidate, he is a loyal party worker, they say. Are they worried about a mad dog biting your children?

Would they endorse a capable candidate? They wouldn't endorse their mother until after election.

They tell you that I must beat each candidate on each party ticket. That is not true. If I get 4,000 Republican "Write In" Votes and 4,000 Democrat "Write In" Votes I will have a total of 8,000 legal votes from 8,000 American citizens. Is there a court in this country that would rob 8,000 Americans of their vote and allow a candidate with 4,001 votes to take office? Are we incubating a Super Race?

Do they lie to you? Should I answer that one? Everybody talks Civil Rights. It is Propaganda! Poppy cock! Promises! All the Negro wants is a decent, civilized Christian chance, a toe hold and he will shoulder his own burden. Don't judge the Negro's home by the condition of his street. The city is supposed to keep the street clean. His home is clean and God is in his heart and he has pride in himself.

Does it make any difference to one union that the price of coal gets so high that the dealer can't afford to burn it himself at the wholesale price? That the railroads go to oil with one third the manpower, and five other crafts go out looking for work. Someone may be able to explain this to me but it looks like Organized Selfishness.

Farmers—When the government begins to tell you when to plant and when to reap the country will soon want bread. We were told once to plow under crops and kill pigs while people were hungry in the world.

CHRISTIANITY, in government? Peanuts! VOTES and DOLLARS—they are the most important. GET 'EM, GET 'EM morally, immorally but GET 'EM, they say.

God bless America! Yes, Sir, God bless America!

Light your candle by WORKING for capable candidates. Vote against me if you will, but Scratch that ticket for capable men, and telephone everyone you can think of. "It is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness."

Coronation May Be Greatest Show---In Color and In Cost

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—The coronation of Queen Elizabeth II promises to be just about the most expensive show on earth, as well as one of the most colorful.

There's just one way you can get a glimpse of the pretty young Queen wearing her historic crown without digging deep into your pockets. Go along early—perhaps even the day before—and stand for hours on jam packed sidewalks, squeezed between stout crash barriers and soldiers with fixed bayonets.

That way, you'll see the coronation procession through London next June 2 without paying a cent. But prepare for most uncomfortable time.

Thousands of seats will be on sale for those willing to pay. In most cases they will cost at least $28.

One big tourist agency, which is lining up sites along the seven-mile route, explains:

"We are telling inquirers that it will not be possible to offer them any seats below 10 guineas (just over $28)."

Oirginally the agency hoped to have some seats at half that price, but they say high costs of labor and materials made it impossible.

It still is not known how many such private enterprise seats will be available—but they probably will not be sufficient to meet demand even with the high prices.

The government is going into the seating business, too, erecting stands along much of the route with bare wood seats for 98,000.

All except 4,000 of these seats will be sold at prices barely sufficial organizations representing uncovered stands, $15.40 with roof overhead.

These will not be available for private purchase, however. Some 30,000 are reserved for Commonwealth visitors, and 64,000 will be sold through official and semi-official organizatios representing various British activities.

A relative handful will see the actual coronation inside stately Westminster Abbey. But for this privileged few it will cost more and probably mean greater discomfort than for anyone else.

The expense mostly will come from tailors' bills. The bulk of the congregation at the Abbey will be peers and peeresses entitled by ancient tradition to watch the crowning ceremony. They all will need expensive state robes.

Hard-up, blue-blooded families which have sold their coronets also might have to shell out similar sums for headgear.

The discomfort will arise from lack of space. The earl marshal, in charge of arrangements, plans to pack 7,600 people into the Abbey That seating plan will crush the nation's nobility shoulder to shoulder

Those who plan to avoid expense and discomfort by gathering 'round the television set still don't know how much they'll see. The procession will be telecast, but so far a ban has been placed on a "live" show of the proceedings in the Abbey. Labor members of Parliament and others have criticized this loudly and it may be lifted by the final authority on the subject, the Coronation Commission headed by the Duke of Norfolk.

Fight Fire With Caution And Common Sense

Fire prevention techniques, learned through tragic experience with fire losses in lives and property, are illustrated above.

Why do some homeowners consistently ignore fire warnings? Why do they gamble the loss of their homes—the largest single investment most of them will ever make—to fire? In the event that they have failed to understand the elementary precautions to take against fire, we will cover them here in understandable language.

More than 70,000 home fires are caused each year by abused or misused electrical equipment. Don't let an amateur handyman alter the wiring of your home—call an electrician, suggests the National Association of Home Builders.

Fuses are the safety valves of your home's electrical system. Check the location of the fuse box as soon as you move into a new home. Never use pennies or substitute 30-amp. fuses where 15-amp. fuses should be used.

When electrical outlets fail to work, it is usually a sign that a fuse has blown. The cause may be (1) overloading the circuit by plugging in too many appliances, (2) a short circuit resulting from a worn cord or defective plug connection, (3) voltage too high for the appliance used, (4) the starting of an electric motor.

To replace a fuse, cut off all current by throwing the master switch. Stand on a dry surface and avoid touching the metal part of the fuse box. Install new fuse and close the master switch.

If your home is to be vacant for more than a few days at a time, pull the main switch to shut off all electric power.

Use of gasoline for cleaning in the house invites fire and explosion. Make certain all inflammables are stored according to the manufacturer's instructions. Never store inflammables in glass jars with screw tops—a cork stopper is safer.

Remove dust from your vacuum cleaner before putting the cleaner away, but don't throw the loose dust into the stove, heater or incinerator. It may cause an explosion.

Before using your fireplace, if you have one, light a newspaper in it to make sure that smoke is being drawn off properly. Never start a fire in a fireplace until you are sure the damper is open. Incidentially, keep the damper closed when the fireplace isn't in use to keep room heat from escaping up the chimney.

It is not advisable to build a fire directly on fireplace bricks. Use andirons or a grate. Your fireplace should have a snug, well-fitted screen. Extinguish the fire each night before retiring. Never use kerosene to start a fire.

At least one fire extinguisher should be kept in every home. Rubbish and trash accumulations are prime ammunition for fires that breed in ou - of - the - way places. Animal or vegetable oils on any combustible material may ignite spontaneously under certain atmospheric conditions.

Store wastepaper and trash in metal cans and dispose of it regularly to avoid accumulations in basement, attic or other storage places. Stack newspapers and magazines neatly in bags or boxes away from the furnace.

Oily mops and cloths are safe from spontaneous combustion if they are hung where they will get plenty of ventilation.

One other instruction may save your home from fire: use your everyday common sense.—NEA.

'City' Not On Map

CARSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — You won't find Carson City on the map but if you drive down Missouri Highway 21 it's hard to miss despite its lack of people.

Metal signs boldly proclaim the unincorporated "city" with its population of three. Actually it is a restiaurant run by Lester Carstens, 48, just 34 miles south of St. Louis.

Carstens fought as an amateur under the ring name of "Kit Carson," and the name stuck when he entered business. He formed the "city" easily last December by simply placing a large sign on the building and smaller signs at the entrances.

Carstens said some neighbors have indicated they would like him to extend his "city limits" but he plans to limit it to his wife, Carol, their son, Keith, 18, and himself.

A SCHOOL HOUSING PROBLEM

There is a place for our children—our most important resource—in our hearts and homes! Will there be a place for them in our schools? Following World War I schools experienced unprecedented growth in enrollment, but before meeting this problem, curtailment came with depression years. Then World War II and the soaring birth rate the past ten years.

BIRTH RATE SOARING

The state of present building is an eye opener and coupled with the 1940-1951 increase in children of 273,025 more, there is only one answer — more buildings must be provided. The increased birth rate means that by 1958 there will be another great increase of 173,206 more children! This means that 6,415 additional classrooms and accompanying facilities and equipment will be needed.

MODERN PLANTS FOR PRACTICAL PROGRAM

Then, too, parents are demanding expanded educational services that add to housing needs—and a just demand. More and better practical education such as home economics, business education, vocational agriculture, trades, industry shops, etc., is requested and will necessitate classrooms to house these classes and as the educational program changes, buildings become obsolete.

OBSOLETE BUILDINGS

Many buildings are old and have served their usefullness. 40% are over 30 years old and one in six is at least 50 years old. 20% of our schools do not meet fire safety conditions and another 17% are of questionable safety. 21% of our children are housed in unsatisfactory school buildings and 44% in buildings that are rated only fair.

MORE PROBLEMS

There are suburban and city areas which have been subjected to a rapid growth in population but without comparable growth in ability to build good classrooms. School attendance is more regular than in former years which means school rooms must be larger or greater in number to accommodate this increased daily attendance.

CONSTITUTION FORBIDS

The answer to the problem is not as simple as saying, "Let's vote a bond issue to cover the needed construction and equipment costs," because our present State Constitution limits the bonding capacity of school districts to 5% of the assessed valuation of the district. In many communities citizens have voted school bonds to the extent that there is insufficient bonding capacity left to meet their present needs.

OUT OF BALANCE: WHY CHANGE NOW?

One might ask, if the 5% constitutional limitation has been sufficient all these years, why isn't it sufficient to meet present day needs? There are at least three big all-over reasons that make it antiquated: (1) Remember the unprecedented increase in our birth rate—it is nearly double that of a few years ago; (2) Building construction costs have risen 130.1%; (3) Assessed valuations have gone up only 37.7% since 1939. The situation might adjust itself within the next 20 years, but children can't wait for their education.

AMENDMENT 2 A SOLUTION

The last session of the Legislature in an attempt to solve this school housing problem passed nearly unanimously joint and concurrent Resolution No. 11 which submit to the qualified voters a constitutional change on school-house bonding capacity. It would permit a school district by a vote of two-thirds of the qualified electors voting thereon to become indebted in an amount not to exceed 10% of the value of the taxable tangible property in the district. Cities and counties now have this right.
This proposal will be known as Amendment 2 and its effect would be to increase the bonding capacity of school districts from 5 to 10 per cent of their asssessed valuations. Certainly this is not out of line with the huge increase in birth rate or the 130.1% increase in construction costs.
It will take a majority vote for its passage.

HOW WILL THIS AFFECT SEDALIA?

Not in any way in the foreseeable future. Our buildings are in good condition and are adequate for the needs of our school children. People of our area should vote for Amendment 2 so that those communities who do have a school housing problem may be in a position to meet it.

Capital Awaits Much Livelier White House Social Season

Any women from Central Missouri who hope to get into the social whirl of capital society after the coming election will probably find there is lots of whirl and many social events. The White House social session is due for a livelier time.

No matter which candidate wins, the assumption is that bright lights will go on at the rebuilt executive mansion for the first time since they were dimmed at the start of World War II.

MRS. ROBERT SCHENCK: A whopping bi-partisan party.

Heightening the interest among females is the chance that the unmarried Gov. Adlai Stevenson might be the victor. This possibility has inspired some spine-tingling questions of protocol. Carolyn Hagner Shaw, social arbiter, puts it this way:

"Should his sister, Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, act as his official hostess and assume the position of the First Lady of the land? If so, that would raise the more complicated question of what rank her husband would hold."

Mrs. Gwenn Cafritz, considered the city's No. 1 unofficial hostess, has her own solution to this stumper. She hereby offers her services as official White House hostess to Governor Stevenson. That's if Mrs. Ives declines, of course.

"Of course, the whole idea is really kind of a joke," she explains. But rolling her eyes skyward she sighs, "imagine being able to entertain in that heavenly place, the new White House."

When Mrs. Truman sees that the last dust fluffs are swept up for the new tenant on Jan. 20, she will leave behind her a unique social record as First Lady.

During seven years as mistress of the White House she managed to limit the number of formal affairs to 20. Her predecessor, Mrs. Roosevelt, would have considered it dull social going if she didn't have that many formal affairs in one month.

Only during the Winter of 1946-47 did the Trumans conduct the full, traditional White House season of a minimum of five state dinners and five formal receptions.

It's no secret that that Winter's chores turned Mrs. Truman against the whole idea. Next Winter the Trumans he only a few receptions and no dinners. Then the reconstruction of the mansion took Mrs. Truman off the hook completely. Last Spring when the White House was reopened the Trumans held 5 receptions and that ended it.

If Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower should win the election the town's socialites are no less enthusiastic about the party future of the White House. When the Eisenhowers lived here, they did their full share of entertaining, and it was said to be of a high caliber. Both the general and his wife are gregarious persons and have many friends in town.

If the debutantes in Washington had their choice, they'd take Stevenson, who has three sons. There haven't been any handsome young men in the White House since the Roosevelt boys frolicked there.

Meanwhile, on the social front in Washington, the party throwing has taken on a rigid bi-partisan character. For every important Democrat invited, the rule is to invite one Republican. In that way you are socially hedged, regardless of what happens at the polls.

CAROLYN SHAW: A complicated question of protocol.

The climax of the campaign, as far as Washington society goes, will come at a tremendous party on election night. Four hostesses who are keeping anonymous, supposedly two Republicans and two Democratic ladies, are sponsoring a completely bi-partisan affair of dancing and celebrating all night until the returns are in.

MRS. ERNEST IVES: What rank would her husband hold?

More than 400 persons, the cream of society, will be there. It will be held in an old mansion which Mrs. Robert Schenck, a prominent society lady who also sells real estate, is trying to sell.

Each person is being charged $7.50. That pays for the television sets which will be rented, the orchestra and the liquor.

Mrs. Schenck doesn't think that there will be any money left over. But she says if there is, it might be used to throw a consolation party for the candidate who lost.

MRS. DWIGHT EISENHOWER: Lots of friends in town.

Coronation May Be Greatest Show---In Color and In Cost

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—The coronation of Queen Elizabeth II promises to be just about the most expensive show on earth, as well as one of the most colorful.

There's just one way you can get a glimpse of the pretty young Queen wearing her historic crown without digging deep into your pockets. Go along early—perhaps even the day before—and stand for hours on jam packed sidewalks, squeezed between stout crash barriers and soldiers with fixed bayonets.

That way, you'll see the coronation procession through London next June 2 without paying a cent. But prepare for most uncomfortable time.

Thousands of seats will be on sale for those willing to pay. In most cases they will cost at least $28.

One big tourist agency, which is lining up sites along the seven-mile route, explains:

"We are telling inquirers that it will not be possible to offer them any seats below 10 guineas (just over $28)."

Oirginally the agency hoped to have some seats at half that price, but they say high costs of labor and materials made it impossible.

It still is not known how many such private enterprise seats will be available—but they probably will not be sufficient to meet demand even with the high prices.

The government is going into the seating business, too, erecting stands along much of the route with bare wood seats for 98,000.

All except 4,000 of these seats will be sold at prices barely sufficial organizations representing uncovered stands, $15.40 with roof overhead.

These will not be available for private purchase, however. Some 30,000 are reserved for Commonwealth visitors, and 64,000 will be sold through official and semi-official organizatios representing various British activities.

A relative handful will see the actual coronation inside stately Westminster Abbey. But for this privileged few it will cost more and probably mean greater discomfort than for anyone else.

The expense mostly will come from tailors' bills. The bulk of the congregation at the Abbey will be peers and peeresses entitled by ancient tradition to watch the crowning ceremony. They all will need expensive state robes.

Hard-up, blue-blooded families which have sold their coronets also might have to shell out similar sums for headgear.

The discomfort will arise from lack of space. The earl marshal, in charge of arrangements, plans to pack 7,600 people into the Abbey That seating plan will crush the nation's nobility shoulder to shoulder

Those who plan to avoid expense and discomfort by gathering 'round the television set still don't know how much they'll see. The procession will be telecast, but so far a ban has been placed on a "live" show of the proceedings in the Abbey. Labor members of Parliament and others have criticized this loudly and it may be lifted by the final authority on the subject, the Coronation Commission headed by the Duke of Norfolk.

Fight Fire With Caution And Common Sense

Fire prevention techniques, learned through tragic experience with fire losses in lives and property, are illustrated above.

Why do some homeowners consistently ignore fire warnings? Why do they gamble the loss of their homes—the largest single investment most of them will ever make—to fire? In the event that they have failed to understand the elementary precautions to take against fire, we will cover them here in understandable language.

More than 70,000 home fires are caused each year by abused or misused electrical equipment. Don't let an amateur handyman alter the wiring of your home—call an electrician, suggests the National Association of Home Builders.

Fuses are the safety valves of your home's electrical system. Check the location of the fuse box as soon as you move into a new home. Never use pennies or substitute 30-amp. fuses where 15-amp. fuses should be used.

When electrical outlets fail to work, it is usually a sign that a fuse has blown. The cause may be (1) overloading the circuit by plugging in too many appliances, (2) a short circuit resulting from a worn cord or defective plug connection, (3) voltage too high for the appliance used, (4) the starting of an electric motor.

To replace a fuse, cut off all current by throwing the master switch. Stand on a dry surface and avoid touching the metal part of the fuse box. Install new fuse and close the master switch.

If your home is to be vacant for more than a few days at a time, pull the main switch to shut off all electric power.

Use of gasoline for cleaning in the house invites fire and explosion. Make certain all inflammables are stored according to the manufacturer's instructions. Never store inflammables in glass jars with screw tops—a cork stopper is safer.

Remove dust from your vacuum cleaner before putting the cleaner away, but don't throw the loose dust into the stove, heater or incinerator. It may cause an explosion.

Before using your fireplace, if you have one, light a newspaper in it to make sure that smoke is being drawn off properly. Never start a fire in a fireplace until you are sure the damper is open. Incidentially, keep the damper closed when the fireplace isn't in use to keep room heat from escaping up the chimney.

It is not advisable to build a fire directly on fireplace bricks. Use andirons or a grate. Your fireplace should have a snug, well-fitted screen. Extinguish the fire each night before retiring. Never use kerosene to start a fire.

At least one fire extinguisher should be kept in every home. Rubbish and trash accumulations are prime ammunition for fires that breed in ou - of - the - way places. Animal or vegetable oils on any combustible material may ignite spontaneously under certain atmospheric conditions.

Store wastepaper and trash in metal cans and dispose of it regularly to avoid accumulations in basement, attic or other storage places. Stack newspapers and magazines neatly in bags or boxes away from the furnace.

Oily mops and cloths are safe from spontaneous combustion if they are hung where they will get plenty of ventilation.

One other instruction may save your home from fire: use your everyday common sense.—NEA.

'City' Not On Map

CARSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — You won't find Carson City on the map but if you drive down Missouri Highway 21 it's hard to miss despite its lack of people.

Metal signs boldly proclaim the unincorporated "city" with its population of three. Actually it is a restiaurant run by Lester Carstens, 48, just 34 miles south of St. Louis.

Carstens fought as an amateur under the ring name of "Kit Carson," and the name stuck when he entered business. He formed the "city" easily last December by simply placing a large sign on the building and smaller signs at the entrances.

Carstens said some neighbors have indicated they would like him to extend his "city limits" but he plans to limit it to his wife, Carol, their son, Keith, 18, and himself.

ROOM FOR ALL OF US?

Vote ☒ For Amendment 2

Tuesday, November 4th

A SCHOOL HOUSING PROBLEM

There is a place for our children—our most important resource—in our hearts and homes! Will there be a place for them in our schools? Following World War I schools experienced unprecedented growth in enrollment, but before meeting this problem, curtailment came with depression years. Then World War II and the soaring birth rate the past ten years.

BIRTH RATE SOARING

The state of present building is an eye opener and coupled with the 1940-1951 increase in children of 273,025 more, there is only one answer — more buildings must be provided. The increased birth rate means that by 1958 there will be another great increase of 173,206 more children! This means that 6,415 additional classrooms and accompanying facilities and equipment will be needed.

MODERN PLANTS FOR PRACTICAL PROGRAM

Then, too, parents are demanding expanded educational services that add to housing needs—and a just demand. More and better practical education such as home economics, business education, vocational agriculture, trades, industry shops, etc., is requested and will necessitate classrooms to house these classes and as the educational program changes, buildings become obsolete.

OBSOLETE BUILDINGS

Many buildings are old and have served their usefullness. 40% are over 30 years old and one in six is at least 50 years old. 20% of our schools do not meet fire safety conditions and another 17% are of questionable safety. 21% of our children are housed in unsatisfactory school buildings and 44% in buildings that are rated only fair.

MORE PROBLEMS

There are suburban and city areas which have been subjected to a rapid growth in population but without comparable growth in ability to build good classrooms. School attendance is more regular than in former years which means school rooms must be larger or greater in number to accommodate this increased daily attendance.

CONSTITUTION FORBIDS

The answer to the problem is not as simple as saying, "Let's vote a bond issue to cover the needed construction and equipment costs," because our present State Constitution limits the bonding capacity of school districts to 5% of the assessed valuation of the district. In many communities citizens have voted school bonds to the extent that there is insufficient bonding capacity left to meet their present needs.

OUT OF BALANCE: WHY CHANGE NOW?

One might ask, if the 5% constitutional limitation has been sufficient all these years, why isn't it sufficient to meet present day needs? There are at least three big all-over reasons that make it antiquated: (1) Remember the unprecedented increase in our birth rate—it is nearly double that of a few years ago; (2) Building construction costs have risen 130.1%; (3) Assessed valuations have gone up only 37.7% since 1939. The situation might adjust itself within the next 20 years, but children can't wait for their education.

AMENDMENT 2 A SOLUTION

The last session of the Legislature in an attempt to solve this school housing problem passed nearly unanimously joint and concurrent Resolution No. 11 which submit to the qualified voters a constitutional change on school-house bonding capacity. It would permit a school district by a vote of two-thirds of the qualified electors voting thereon to become indebted in an amount not to exceed 10% of the value of the taxable tangible property in the district. Cities and counties now have this right.
This proposal will be known as Amendment 2 and its effect would be to increase the bonding capacity of school districts from 5 to 10 per cent of their assssessed valuations. Certainly this is not out of line with the huge increase in birth rate or the 130.1% increase in construction costs.
It will take a majority vote for its passage.

HOW WILL THIS AFFECT SEDALIA?

Not in any way in the foreseeable future. Our buildings are in good condition and are adequate for the needs of our school children. People of our area should vote for Amendment 2 so that those communities who do have a school housing problem may be in a position to meet it.

Jerry Trotter wants an opportunity to do something useful and within his capabilities. This wish has prompted him to seek the office of county assessor. Jerry has a keen mind, a business education, and a drive to do something worth while in his home town.

Jerry does not seek office on a plea of the past sacrifices he has made for his country. He has never campaigned on any basis other than that he is capable of handling the office he is seeking.

We believe that Jerry will make an assessor of whom we can all be proud; that he will be honest, fair, courteus, business-like and impartial in the office.

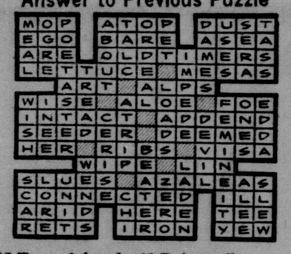
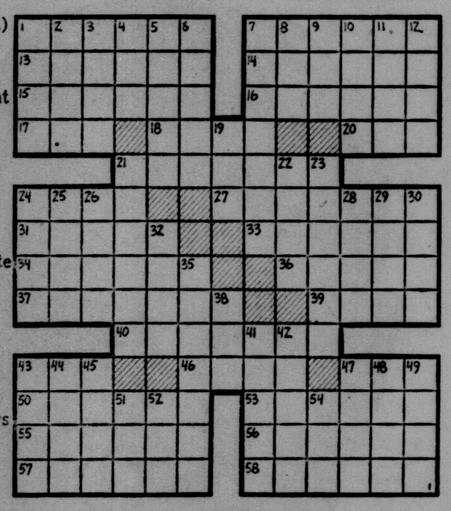
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Disc Jockey Must Change His Tune

LONDON (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corp. has ordered disc jockeys on its "Music While you Work" program for factory employes to stop playing a top - hit tune — "Sugarbush."

Said the BBC: "Sugarbush features intricate handclapping as a part of its rhythm and some machine shop workers reportedly have been hitting machinery with their tools in time with the handclaps.

"There have been some disastrous results," the BBC admitted ruefully.

Jerry Trotter
For County Assessor

A courageous young veteran of World War II, who regardless of physical handicap has demonstrated his ability to ably serve in public office.

Do You Have Security?

You've got more saving and more insurance than the average man of twenty years ago had—three times as much savings. And 65 million of you have something at little cost that would have cost your father $10,000 or $15,000—the protection of Social Security insurance.

Do You Live Better? Sure!

We can afford more good things and we buy them. And one of the things millions of Americans can afford that they couldn't 20 years ago is a decent home. Only 14,000,000 Americans owned homes in 1932. Today the total is 24,000,000. We own more than fifty-three million autos, sixteen million television sets and forty-three million radios. There is a refrigerator in 80 per cent of all American homes.

Do You Live In A Good Country?

You live in a free country which produces more homes, more cars, more TV sets, more radios, more refrigerators, more of the things which make life comfortable and convenient than any other nation in the world. Last year the total was $328 billion, three times more than in 1932.

Third Ward	2295

Don't Vote Against Yourself!

Can You Afford These Good Things?

People in America put in less labor for a car than people in some nations have to put in to buy a bicycle or a cart. Working people in the U.S. live better than big shots do in most countries. The average American makes twice what he did in 1932—that's in terms of what his money will buy at today's prices.

Do You Eat Better?

You eat 89 pounds more food than the average American did in 1932, and you eat more of the things you like—meat, eggs, fresh fruits, foods that are better for you.

Do Your Kids Get a Better Break?

One-third more children go to high school than in 1929. Look at the kids today, healthy, well fed, well clothed.

Is There a Good Future For Your Kids?

Sure, there is! There are 61 million jobs—and more in the making. Farmers are making money. Business is profitable. Kids today get more education and better jobs than the depression class of '32. A quick comparison—13 million out of work then, more than 61 million working today.
